You Can't Run a Train Without Tracks

Everybody knows you can't run a train without tracks; and everybody ought to know you can't run a telephone company without money.

Sometimes people seem to forget this fact concerning the telephone. The business man knows he must have money to run his business. The housewife knows she must have money to run the home. They both know that it costs more to run anything these days, than it did two or three years ago.

WE MUST HAVE YOUR SUPPORT IF YOU ARE TO HAVE THE TELEPHONE

It is just the same with those of us who go to make up the telephone company; we linemen, operators, electricians and engineers; the cost of living has hit us just as hard as it has hit you. And the cost of the materials with which we work has just about doubled.

These are plain, everyday facts. Without enough money to pay expenses it is just as impossible for us to run the telephone company as it is impossible to run a train without tracks.

Rates must meet expenses.
