
And when they were come into the house, they saw the young child with Mary his mother, and fell down, and worshipped him: and when they had opened their treasures, they presented unto him gifts; gold, and frankincense, and myrrh.

MATTHEW II : 11.

The Heart of Christmas

Christmas is not today. It is coming. It is independent of clocks. We celebrate it on Friday, as a matter of fact, but day of the week is of little consequence to it. It is coming, by the way, but it is independent of that, too. It has nothing to do with place. It is no respecter of geographic centers of observance. It has no latitude or longitude, government or even time or hours. It is the institution which exists in the heart of man and under the pole or on the line. Christmas is a spiritual condition. It belongs to the kingdom of the heart. It is not governed by stages of development or of mind. It is there because it is there. It may be a wicked power in men, it may be a mighty influence. It may be here one time, there another. It may control it to a day, you know the meaning of it. If you try to put it into words or into hours, you rob it of and lose the essence of it.

CHRISTMAS MOTHER GOOSE.

What are little boys made of—made of—
What are little boys made of?
Rights and lefts,
And bits of necks,
And that's what little boys are made of.

What are little girls made of—made of—
What are little girls made of?
Ribbons and curls,
And frills and furbelows,
And that's what little girls are made of.

Where Christmas Comes From

By T. C. HARBAUGH

From the land of song and story,
Angel-kept and old as Time,
Where the lily in her glory
Reigns the Queen of Judah's clime—
From the village of the stranger
Where the infant Saviour lay,
Cradled in an humble manger,
Christmas comes to us today.

From the fields where grew the flow'rs
Where His childhood flitted by,
Where He spent the fated hours
'Neath the burning Orient sky,
And from where the roses scrambled
Over hedge and mossy wall,
Carpeting the paths He rambled,
Christmas comes to greet us all.

Kedron still its song is singing
To the far off Orient sea,
And the tuneful bells are ringing
In the old year's jubilee;
Children pluck the lily blowing
On her ever graceful stem,
And the lazy herds are lowing
On the plains of Bethlehem.

Where He trod the paths of sorrow,
Where He felt the wound of thorn,
Where He longed the brighter morrow
Dawns the holy Christmas morn;
Where the gentle day discloses
Happiness on land and sea,
Once He blessed the gentle roses
On the shores of Galilee.

Ayes, from humble hut and steeple
In that land that lies afar,
Rise the anthems of the people
To the glowing Christmas Star;
There is told the olden story
How amid the scented hay,
Christ, the Saviour, came from glory
Upon earth's first Christmas day.

Set the bells of Christmas ringing
It is time's best jubilee,
For to us again they're bringing
Messages from oversea;
Let the hearts of all be lifted,
Hope the fiercest tide can stem;
Let the darkest clouds be rifted,
Christmas comes from Bethlehem!

SCRAPS

When Run-Down

Fonda (Ia.) Ac, Wis.—"Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a very good medicine. When I was a girl going to school I got run down and was not able to stand much. I was out of work a while and this medicine built me up in fine shape in quite a short space of time. I also took it about seven years ago during expectancy and it helped me very much. I had practically no suffering and my baby was strong and healthy and has always been. The 'Prescription' has done wonders for me. I think it the only medicine for women."—Mrs. Carl Gehrig, [illegible] 4th Street.

Reason for Gratitude.

Little Edna had been to the museum with her mother. In the Egyptian room the child saw the decorated remains of an ancient queen and asked what it was.

"Child's nonsense, mummy, dear," replied mother.

"Goodness," said Edna. "I'm glad it doesn't look like that."—Boston Transcript.
