DON QUIXOTE

By MIGUEL DE CERVANTES

Condensation by Nathan Haskell Dole

Miguel de Cervantes, dramatist and novelist, was born in 1547, the son of a Spanish dragoon and surgeon. He died in Madrid in 1616. He wrote Don Quixote, the greatest of Spanish novels.

princess and in the hightest terms... further purloin he drew against the mouth...

After his mission he wrote many... This mission had more than fortune, and he added to his responsibilities...

THE sixteenth century romance of chivalry, written in illustrious, exaggerated style, was extremely popular in Spain.

He decided that for his own honor and for the service of the world, he would turn knight-errant and journey through the world...

On the plains of Madrid stood a score of big windmills. Don Quixote took them for enormous giants...

Their last adventure was with two monks riding on mules. He was disappointed by company with a coach in which sat a lady covered by rich ornaments...
