What is a Peddler? The word peddler is derived from an old English word "ped" as in "peddle" and "peddler." It is a wicker pot wherein they use to carry fish. It has no connection with the Latin pedis, a foot, as often reported. A peddler is, therefore, one with a pot, basket or pack and it has been in law, one who has the identical article he sells in his "ped." It is, simply speaking, however, therefore, to call an itinerant merchant, who simply takes orders for goods bought from seeing samples he carries, a peddler.

Miss Marie, daughter of Mr. Morris was the guest of Mrs. J. H. Corey of Michigan last week.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Martin and daughter Marion of Michigan returned to their home in Michigan last week.

The Happy Life.

Not worried very much about the High Cost of Living, are they? And why should they? Jack gets the same amount of meat, sugar or potatoes at present day prices as when they cost only one-third as much.

And the Centees on board sell him candy, cigars, tooth powder, shaving soap, and all his other needs at cost, plus only ten per cent profit. This great goes into an athletic and entertainment fund, furnishing him with marine flims, athletic equipment, and other play time necessities, for nothing.

It's a hard life; that's the reason the fellows in the picture look so worried.
