CHILD EDITOR PUBLISHES NEIGHBORHOOD 'NEWSPAPER'

Local Boy Shows Talent in Chosen Work; Sheet has All Departments Of Real Newspaper

"Like father, like son," is most remarkably proven in the case of Lee A. White and his seven-year-old son, Stoddard, of 510 Brookside road, Birmingham. Mr. White is an experienced newspaper man, at present connected with the Detroit News. His son Stoddard is following closely in his footsteps and has the unique distinction, it is believed, of being the youngest newspaper editor ever known to the newspaper world. He publishes a paper called "The Brookside Weekly," and reports an ever-growing number of subscribers every few days.

"want ad" says that Mrs. Schell wants a grey kitten.

In an interview with the young editor this week he explained that his efforts were but an expression of the desire that has been his since he was old enough to know what newspaper writing was. He has high ideals about his future work and feels that there is no doubt but that he will some day be one of the world's greatest newspaper men, and, he added in a rather sagacious manner, "maybe some day I can even be better than my Dad."

W. J. Frost, 211 Euclid avenue, is building a home on Dewey street. He will move his family into it as soon as the house is completed.

Miss Mary Manchester, a student at M. A. C., arrived home last Saturday morning to spend the present holidays with her parents on North Woodward avenue.

Mrs. Walter Ryan of Brookside Park, who has been confined to her home for several weeks, is able to be-out again and is steadily improving in health.

Clyde Peabody, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Bert Peabody, East Maple avenue, is home to remain until the holidays are over. He is an U. of M. student.

Mrs. P. L. Slusser, Lima, Ohio, arrived this week in Birmingham and will spend the holidays with Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Slusser of Pierce street.
