

Christmas Greetings

from the President of the United States

THE Christmas Season of 1921 comes to a world which I think we all realize has now set its feet fairly and firmly in the way of rehabilitation and of return to the safe ways of progress and construction.

Our own country may well regard itself as peculiarly fortunate both in its own bounteous resources and by reason of the opportunity which it has enjoyed of making its own good fortune and means to help others.

At this Christmas Season, I hope and am very sure that our people will return devout thanks for the blessings that have been bestowed upon them, and renew their pledges of service and usefulness of earnest effort and safe advancement in behalf of the best things in life.

Not for a While. He was a bachelor in the forties and she was a sweet young thing of twenty, but he loved her and was courting her vigorously in all the ways an old bachelor knows how to woo a young maid. Then one night he decided he would sing to her. Going to the piano, he picked up some loose sheets of music and began to play. Finally he came to one which pleased him and began to sing: "Grow old with me—the best of it."

But the sweet young thing had interrupted him very freely. "I won't do it," she tossed back impudently, "at least, not for 25 years."—Brooklyn Standard Union.

No Labor Saver. A traveling man was eating in a stuffy little restaurant one very hot day where there were no screens at windows or doors. The proprietress had been waiting on her customers and "showed" flies from the table while doing so. Her energetic but vain efforts attracted the attention and raised the sympathy of the traveling man, who said: "Wouldn't it be better to have your windows and the door screened?" "Well, yes, I suppose that would help some," she replied, after a moment's reflection, "but don't you think it would look kinder lazylike?"—Harper's Magazine.

Taken in Turn. "Let's see, when were we discussing?" "I forget! Who went out of the dressing room a last?"—London Mail.

Puff Pastry for the Holidays

Butter, quarter pound; best pastry flour, quarter pound; egg, half of yolk; water, a little; lemon juice, a few drops.

Take half the yolk of egg, mix, but do not beat, in a cup with two table-spoonfuls of water and a few drops of lemon juice. Mix this into the flour with a knife, adding sufficient water to make the dough the right consistency; knead lightly and put out on well-floured board. Roll out into an oblong about quarter inch thick. Take the butter and put on a clean cloth, heating lightly with the fat until less than half the size of the dough, squeezing out all the water so as to make it as dry as possible.

Put the butter on the dough in little dabs, fold over, press edges lightly together, roll out carefully and fold in three. Put away in a cold place for ten minutes. Then flour the board again, and repeat the process until pastry has been folded and rolled seven times, letting it stand between each rolling. Bake in a very hot oven, but watch carefully, as it is very apt to burn.

More Urgent Matters. "What's that you are playing?" asked Mr. Twobble of Mrs. Twobble, who was seated at the piano. "It's a meditation." "I wish you would postpone your musical meditation for a little while until I can meditate on ways and means to pay our Christmas bills."

Plum Pudding for Christmas Feast

Plum pudding for the Christmas feast should be made as early as possible, as it improves with age, and is easily reheated. A good recipe for the pudding calls for one pound of currants, one pound of raisins, one pound of shredded suet, three-fourths of a pound of bread crumbs, one-half cupful of grape juice, one teaspoonful of cloves, one teaspoonful each of cinnamon and allspice, one pound of sugar, one-half pound of citron, one-fourth of a pound of flour, five eggs, one-half ounce (grated) and nuts if desired. Beat the eggs and add the sugar, which has been mixed with the spices. Add the bread crumbs, which have been soaked in the grape juice for a few minutes; then add the fruit and the rest, both well floured, and the remaining flour. Stir the mixture well, then place in greased pudding mold; one-pound baking powder cans may be used. Fill the molds two-thirds full and steam for six hours. The pudding may be reheated by steaming it in the original mold, or it may be cut into slices and heated in a steamer.
