Nathan Straus' Paper Read at Infant Welfare Conference in London

London, July 7.—A paper by Nathan Straus, New York, on the subject of infant nutrition, was read by Dr. S. G. H. Moore, health officer of Huddersfield, at the Conference on Infant Welfare held today under the patronage of the King and Queen.

Mr. Straus' paper stated that it was his original purpose when the milk commission was instituted in 1912, to check ravages from summer complaint which attacked infants in their second summer. At that time, Mr. Straus presented a paper on the subject of infant nutrition, which pointed out that intestinal trouble in their second summer when the change was made from mother's milk to the "infected milk of the cow."

He Gives Statistics
"Of 1,317,089 deaths in the United States in 1914, 276,520 were of babies less than two years of age, 100,000 of the deaths were from intestinal disorders, mainly infectious diseases, due to germs conveyed in milk," Mr. Straus' paper stated.

"As the germ theory became the subject of extensive scientific research it became evident that germs caused other diseases, in addition to tuberculosis and intestinal poison. Typhoid fever, scarlet fever, diphtheria, septic sore throat and measles, all these diseases were found to be caused by germs in milk."

"There are records of numerous epidemics where it was officially established that the milk supply had been the carrier of the germs. The most striking of all was my experience during the infantile paralysis epidemic in New York during the summer of 1916. Of 2,100 children of all cities on the pasteurized milk prepared at my laboratory, not a single case of the disease developed. When this fact became known I was besieged by frantic mothers for information."

Use Pasteurized Milk
Mr. Straus advised those inquirers to use pasteurized milk to health if they were unable to obtain milk of their own. He told of the establishment of his milk depots in various parts of New York City, where trained attendants advised the mothers in the care of infants.

The extent to which his pioneer work had been followed was shown in the paper by the fact that 100 infant milk depots had been established in New York, 25 in Philadelphia, 20 in Chicago and 12 in St. Louis. Altogether in the United States, Mr. Straus said, 297 such stations are distributed in the cities.

By this means milk at once a large class "free from any possible infection," was brought within the reach of children. In some instances, 1,500,000 glasses were dispensed through these stations.

THE UNIVERSAL CAR

During all the years the Ford Model T One Ton Truck has been on the market, we have never had one complaint of rear axle trouble. We have had no complaints of motor trouble. As the motor and the rear axle are the vital fundamentals in a motor truck, we have the right to conclude that the Ford One Ton Truck has not only met the demands of business, but has done so in a satisfactory and economic way. There is no other evidence so convincing as that which comes from long practical experience. Ford One Ton Trucks are serving along all industrial and commercial lines. You will find them everywhere. If these statements were not facts, the demand for the Ford One Ton Truck would not be as large as it is, because people are not buying trucks that do not give service. Coupled with the dependability of the Ford One Ton Truck in all classes of usage, comes the economy in operation and maintenance. On the farm, in factory delivery, for the merchant, manufacturer, and contractor, in these days of modern business methods, this worn-driven Ford One Ton Truck has become an actual necessity. Come in and talk it over.
