Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture. "So far as the garden is concerned, I've struck," said Mrs. Damon to her caller, as she sat back, knitting in her hands, prepared to count. "I tried to do it with a hoe, but it didn't do any good. No more vegetable garden for me, Mrs. Brown; and I don't think I'll plant any annuals in the flower beds, either."

Suggests Use of Garden Pad.

"I'd think that, as you do, you dislike really, is the condition under which the work is done, you might use a garden pad," Mrs. Brown suggested. "Some of the kind I saw at the home demonstration agent teaching some girls to make the other day."

"You suppose she would share my loss? Why down deep in my heart I'd like to be poking in the soil in my garden this day. If the frost were over of the ground," Mrs. Damon's eyes were shining.

Garden Pad Made of Inexpensive Material Saves Clothes of the Gardener.

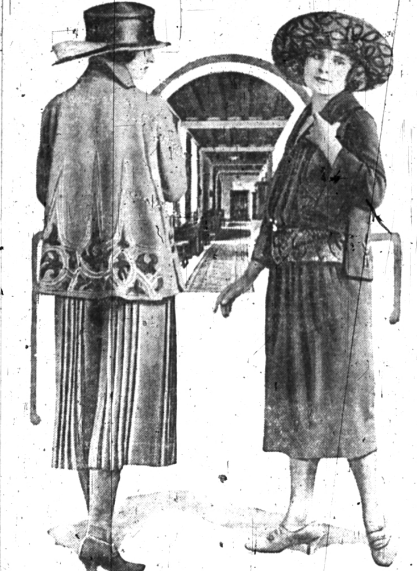

colage and the United States Department of Agriculture, give Mrs. Damon the next day. "The pad may be made of matting, or even an old rug or piece of carpet. Burlap, denim, oilcloth, heavy canvas or even an old rug or piece of carpet. Matting lined with brown denim is very suitable material, because this does not show soil easily. The matting lined with brown denim and found with red tape makes an attractive color combination. If cloth without the matting is used it will be seen

THE NEW WAYS OF SPRING SUITS

Among them there are distinctive models, probably inspired by the Paris opinions, that have long coats but these are not the suits that occupy our thoughts. It is the new ways in which the first lines presented have been developed that competition attract. Two of these new ways are set forth in the suits pictured above, modeled in styles that grow successful from the first, but evading details that are entirely new.
