600,000 FROM DEATH Let the People Know

they can waste an enormous amount of gas by mis-use of their automatic water heaters.

An automatic water heater is a very useful and valuable thing, needed in all homes.

But like many other good things, it can easily be mis-used and when it is, wastes a lot of gas. Many a gas bill is higher than it should be because somebody has misued the automatic water

For example, if you want to heat just a small quantity of water, say to wash your face or gargle your throat or to make a hot lemonade, don't light your automatic heater. Heat the water in a small vessel on the stove. If you light your automatic heater, you are apt to use five times as much gas as you really need to heat the small quantity of water you want. And you leave the coils of the automatic heater full of hot water-to cool off.

Make a rule of drawing no more water through your automatic heater than you actually need, remembering that the gas meter runs as long as you leave your faucet running.
