The feeding of beef cattle for the market has become a special line of work, which requires a high grade of skill through understanding of the feeding values of different materials used in the production of beef, as well as an appreciation of the requirements of animal nutrition and alrewed basiness ability. Without the precipitation of the requirements of the feeder is doubted to be a superior of the feeder of the state of the feeder is the feeder in the feeder for the time and in former years. It is necessary, therefore, in order to obtain prices which will pay the feeder for his time and outlay, to produce a herd of cattle as nearly uniform as possible in appearance and quality, with a high market finish and symmetrical development, particularly in those parts which yield pathetic and lovable characters in our literature. Useless Worry.

Some one has said that if the energy expended in useless worry could be stored and translated into power, like electricity or steam, it would operate all the machinery of the world. There is no doubt that the energy we waste in worrying, if turned in the right direction, would conquer all our problems and difficulties. We not only ripple and dwarf our lives, and cause ourselves constant saffering by worrying and fresting over misortunes that come to us, but we forture ourselves, ruin our happiness and sap our vitality by anti-quality and misortunes that once in the control of the con
