LUKE FOUGHT HIS OWN WAR

Young Lieutenant's Devotion Lives on in Sister Now Cheering Ex-Soldiers in Hospitals.

Frank Luke's devotion to duty lives on in the character of his sister. The American ace who so gallantly gave his life one day in the early autumn of 1918 found the same joy in service to his country that Anna Marie Luke now finds in serving ex-soldiers in the hospitals of Phoenix, Ariz. Her songs are known wherever veterans are quartered, and her popularity at the American Legion post, which bears her brother's name, is often remarked.

Further honor was recently paid the memory of Lieutenant Luke when the Italian Croce di Guerre was awarded him posthumously. The cross, with a certificate of award signed by General Diaz, is now in possession of the late officer's family, together with a Congressional Medal of Honor, a Distinguished Service Cross with oak leaf cluster, and several minor decorations.

The lieutenant was one of the best known and most picturesque flyers in any army. Working for the most part without orders, he practically fought his own war. He would land up with bombs, fly far back into German territory, take on any odds that happened to fall to him, and work destruction wherever he went. Known by reputation to every man in the A. E. F., he represented all that was romantic in modern warfare. He fell in action with enemy airmen near Murvaux, after a forced landing of his plane. He had previously shot down three German balloons while under terrific fire from ground batteries.

THE TYPICAL YANK FIGHTER

Sergeant William Mettlen, Omaha, Stacks Up With All the Required Dimensions.

How would you look if a slacker back in the States had taken your job and married your girl? No, that didn't happen to Sergeant William Mettlen of Omaha, Neb., but he was told to imagine that it did while signal corps photographers were taking his picture to represent the "typical American fighting man." The photographers, on an official mission from the government, scratched their heads a long while before they thought of anything that would make him look fierce enough.

If you want to be "typical" you will have to stack up as follows: Height, 5 feet 10½ inches; weight, 160 pounds; hair, light brown, and eyes, blue. Mettlen's other specifications are that he enlisted when nineteen years old, while still a freshman at Nebraska university; that he was cited four times for bravery; that he is as active in the American Legion now as he was in the Sixteenth infantry then, and that, in addition to being a typical American, he is Scotch-Irish.

LEGION WINS COURT BATTLES

Damages Allowed National Organization in First Litigation Instituted —Two Editors Indicted.

From the first court action which it ever instituted to protect its name, the American Legion emerged victorious. Judgment by default and damages were awarded the Legion in the suit against Francis H. Shoemaker of Omaha, Neb., who was quoted as saying that the Legion was "subsidized by big interests" and was "opposed to organized labor."

Shoemaker, who is an alleged radical worker, made a speech last December in Omaha, during the course of which he is said to have referred to the Legion as "an organization of trained murderers opposed to organized labor." Suit was brought by the Legion commander in Nebraska on the ground that the statements were "wicked, false and malicious" and for the purpose of "stopping such contemptible lies and showing union labor that we resent charges of being opposed to them."

The Legion has also secured indictments against two editors of the Illinois Staats Zeitung, a German-language newspaper, for an editorial which appeared in their paper libeling ex-service men.

"Second Annual Tour."

Spurred by the success of its tour of Europe last summer, Hyde Park post of the American Legion in Chicago has arranged for its "second annual tour" of the battlefields and principal cities. The party will start in the early part of June. A trip to Nice and Monte Carlo, excursions to Alpine mountains, a voyage down the Rhine, and several days in Paris are among the attractions which are making it hard for Legionnaires to "keep their minds on their work."

QUEER FREAKS OF NATURE

River of Pure Ink in Algeria—Siberian Streams Flow Over Beds of Solid Ice—Singing Well.

A river of ink is formed in Algeria by the union of two streams, the water of one being impregnated with iron and the other, which drains a great swamp, with gallic acid. This combination of iron and acid forms a pure ink.

In Siberia rivers flow over ice old and solid as rock. A tributary of the Lena river has underneath the soil which forms the bed of the river, a bed of pure ice, over nine feet thick. A freak of nature is the lost river in Kentucky. It is known as the Hidden river, because no one knows its origin, and it vanishes into a cave leading no one knows where. It flows without a ripple, and is of a pale, bluish color.

A singing well is one of the natural curiosities of Texas. In fine weather a sound like that of an aeolian harp is given out by the well. At times the sound is clear; then it recedes, as if far away; and then it reaches the ear very faintly. These changes take place every few minutes, and with great regularity.

With an east wind blowing the water in the well gets very low, and the mysterious musical sound is faint. A strong west wind causes the water to rise and the sound to increase in volume and clearness. Before a north wind the well plays its wildest pranks. The water rises nearly to the top of the well, which is about sixty feet deep, and gives out wild, weird noises.

Safeguarding the Mules.

Ludicrous as it may seem, necessity has demanded that a Los Angeles driver equip his mules with tail lights, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. Without being facetious, it may not be amiss to point out that the devices he employs are literally the first real tail lights ever used. Some time ago when a number of the man's mules were being driven along a highway at night, a motor car plunged into the drove with disastrous results. This caused the dealer to resort to the warning lights so as to avoid similar accidents in the future. The devices, which are identical to those used on many bicycles, are strapped to the mules' tails. When the glare from the lamps of a motor car strikes them, beams of ruby light are reflected. Incidentally, if a mule swings his tail, the warning signal becomes all the more noticeable.

Thief Feared Siege of Paris.

A woman shoplifter who was caught in the act of appropriating a curtain from a Paris emporium was sentenced to ten months' imprisonment. An enormous quantity of stolen objects, consisting chiefly of provisions and articles of clothing, was found at her apartment. Her excuse before the judge was that the articles had been laid in by her as a precaution against a siege of Paris, an argument which failed to move the court.

An inventor has brought out an insect trap that can be screwed into the top of a fruit jar.
