DRUG DREAMS CALLED MYTH Research Has Shown That Habitual Users of Opium Can Do No Lasting Good Work.

The gulf between the songs of people that breathe of sleep, the golden and green dragons and the castle-dreams that mark the "literature" of drug addiction and the dismal side of the view which the police behold, is brought out in an interesting study by Dr. Carlton Simon, who emphasizes in the Scientific American the fact that opium, hashish, cocaine, heroin, morphine and the rest are far from lyrical.

"From the standpoint of the police," he writes, "all the romance of the songs and short stories is swept away on the fumes of a drug which brings depression, poverty, despair, and death. It has long been suspected that the drug dream was a literary myth, was much overrated. At the time the author is able to write of his visions—if he has them—of a debauch, he is ill and purposeless and nearly for another dose. For anybody but a Hollywood artist, the inspiration enough for a drug poem is tale. Go further, and the dream vanishes in a bathhouse reality."

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

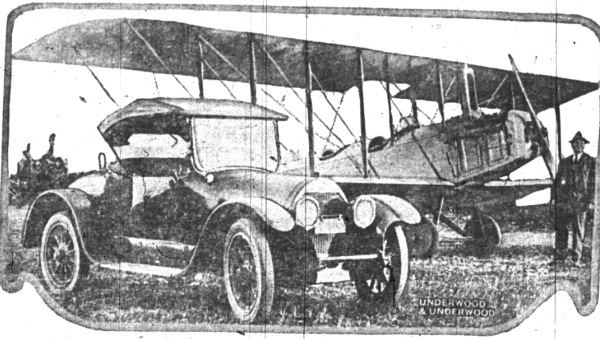

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extensively advertised, and which you see right and are soon forgotten? The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promise of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicinal preparation that has real curative value almost sells itself, as has an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have benefited, to those who are in need of it. A prominent druggist says: "Take for example, Dr. Klinger's Swamp Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never hesitate to recommend, for in almost every case it shows the best results, as many of my customers testify. No other kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Klinger's Swamp Root is due to the fact, so many people claim, that it fulfills almost every wish in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, cures urinary troubles and neutralizes the acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp Root by Parcel Post. Address Dr. Klinger & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents, also mention the paper, large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores. Advertisement

Aerial Booze Runners Nabbed in California

That aviators were employed in smuggling liquor over the Mexican border has long been suspected. It remained for Customs officer W. B. Evans to capture the first flying ration. He is shown here with the Mexican pilot and auto which he captured near San Diego, Cal., six kegs of whiskey were being transferred from plane to motor car. Evans also arrested the pilot, auto driver and a "lookout."

BRIEF INFORMATION Naples has 367 churches, two more than Rome. The Arabs of southern Egypt traded with India, 1000 B. C. The energy of a wave depends on its length and height. Many animals keep their mates throughout their lives. The primitive bag originated near the eastern foothills of the Rockies. The penguins of the antarctic regions are the most human of all the first families, walking upright and living in communities, quite unafraid of man. In India certain species of fish can live out of water a day or two, and on a hot summer's day they may be seen making their way rather clumsily across the fields. New Zealand has so successfully drained 80,000 acres of land for farming and grazing that the government plans to spend another $1,000,000 for the same purpose.

Wants More Land Opened.

For every government farm available today there are 100 service men standing in line, according to Secretary of the Interior Fall, who has informed the American Legion that the government is unable in any degree to satisfy the "back-to-the-farm" craving of our soldier-soldiers. The Legion is endeavoring to have more land opened to settlement for service men.

"HOBOED" TO GET POINTERS

David McCall, Texas Veteran, Makes "Blind Baggage" Trip to Aid Ex-Service Men.

Jobless and penniless, hundreds of ex-service men in the West are "riding the rods" from place to place in search of employment. While others are talking about doing something for them, David McCall, young war veteran of Dallas, Tex., made a "hobo" trip to get first-hand information about the men to devise means of helping them that would be acceptable to all.

"I rode the blinds and side-door pullmans for 800 miles over the M. K. & P. Santa Fe and Texas and Pacific railroads," McCall reported to the American Legion authorities of Texas handling the unemployment problem. "I noted three outstanding things in the six-day trip. First, the real, old-time hobo of the back door variety has almost disappeared. Second, there were a large number of young men who were too young to have entered the army. The majority of the men riding the rods were of this class. Third, there was comparatively small number of ex-service men on the rods. They were noticeably untrained in the ways of hobbing."

WAS ONLY COMIC OPERA WAR

Americans Experienced Odd Provisions When Joining Spanish Legion Against Moors.

It was just a comic opera war anyhow, according to 83 young Americans who have returned to New York from whence they sailed two months ago to join the Spanish Foreign Legion for service against the Moors. The would-be Foreign Legionnaires were represented in numbers among ex-service men applying to the American Legion employment bureau for any kind of work.

After enlistment in New York, the recruits, almost all of whom had served overseas with the American army, were sent to Ceuta, Africa. There they were informed for the first time that out of the first pay of 45 pesetas a day (about 90 cents) they must buy their own uniform, food, equipment and ammunition. "It was the funniest war you ever saw," declared George Dimond of Brooklyn, who explained that the harder you fought the more it would cost you for ammunition. If a man fought very hard he would soon be deeply in debt to the Spanish government. If, on the other hand, he conserved ammunition and tried to save money, he stood excellent chance of being picked off by a Moor. Besides all that, the Americans who thought they were to be officers, were assured that they were welcomed only as privates.

Manner of Administering.

A cowboy living near Big Stranger was complaining to the new school mar in about his stiff legs. "I think you'd better," said the school mar, "I'll give you a little medicine that will cure you."

"How do you take that?" he asked. "Do you take it with a spoon or do it come in capsules?" "No, it's in a little tin," said the school mar. "It's the kind of thing," she replied. "That you shake while talking."—Union Pacific Bulletin.

CATS FOLLOW FISH DEALER

Animals of Sheephead Bay Regularly Take the Trail of the Peddler of Sea Food. Like the plover bird, the Sheephead Bay fish dealer has a following of cats as he pushes his cart through the residence section on Friday morning, says the New York Sun. The cats for blocks away hear his shrill cry of "Fresh fish!" or perhaps smell his cargo and come skippy through the streets for a chance at a delectable bit of sea food.

When the fishman gets a customer he cleans and scales the fish on the ground. This is the chance for the neighborhood cats. Their part of the feast consists of the discarded heads and tails of fluke and sea bass. Obtaining a prized portion, most of the cats break for home to enjoy the repast, while others not so fortunate hang on the peddler's heels and follow him about until he finally makes a sale and permits them to profit on his loss.

"Those Who Dance Must Pay The Fiddler"

There's a settlement in profit or loss, for nearly every indulgence. Sometimes the pay day is long deferred, and in that case the settlement may bear compound interest.

Often a payment in ill health is required for the dance had with tea or coffee during earlier years. Sometimes the collection comes in sleeplessness, sometimes in headaches, sometimes in high blood pressure, or in nervous indigestion—sometimes in all these penalties.

Nerves won't always stand the whipping of tea and coffee's drug, caffeine. If you've been dancing to tea or coffee's fiddling, why keep on till payment time comes? If you're beginning to pay, now, why not cancel the contract?

There's an easy and pleasant way, to avoid tea and coffee's penalties, as thousands have found who have reached to Postum. It is a delight with any meal—rich, comforting and satisfying—and it never harms. Even the little children can have a breakfast cup of Postum, with no fear for what may happen to sensitive nerves.

Instead of paying penalties for your meal-time drink, let it pay benefits to you, by giving natural health a full chance—and begin the new arrangement today. Any grocer will sell you, or any good restaurant will serve you Postum.

Postum comes in two forms: Instant Postum (in tin) made instantly in a cup by the addition of boiling water. Postum Cereal (in packages of larger bulk, for those who prefer to make the drink while the meal is being prepared) made by boiling for 20 minutes.
