

Farmers and Prosperous Times

- The rise in the price of agricultural products is one of the surest indications of returning prosperity. When the farmer receives a just equivalent for his product, good times are on the way. As a bank which has many farmer patrons, we are primarily interested in farmer's welfare.

SCHOOL EXHIBIT

The annual exhibit is always a big event of the school year and the one given last Friday evening was fully up to standard and in many respects superior to any which has been given thus far. A large crowd of interested people attended and manifested by words and actions their appreciation of the work being done in the public schools.

An exceptionally good radio exhibit was given in Mr. Toothaker's room and attracted many people who were trying to learn the intricacies of that latest invention. Across the hall were some of the larger articles such as the training department. Miss McLellan's cedar chest elicited much praise and no little surprise for that she not planning to leave us.

Typeprinting and penmanship work was shown in the commercial room and it was high grade in every particular. Many commented on the penmanship especially.

Miss Curtis had a fine showing from the sewing department, and the character of the work was highly commended. The style show which her girls gave in the session room was especially well arranged. Their models were not only pretty but practical.

The crowd, hands in pockets, flocked through the domestic science room with covetous glances at the tempting morsels prepared before them. It was truly a collection of the best things put up in a most skillful manner.

Some fine things were shown in the Manual Training room, which spoke well for the kind of work in that department.

Miss Norbery had her art exhibit on the first floor and it was one of the best, as much of the work was done by the smaller children. The neatness and cleanliness of the work were the outstanding features.

On the third floor, the Agriculture and Botany classes attracted many with their showings. A miniature farmstead, model flower garden.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Griffith, who have made their home on West Maple Avenue for several years, moved to Argus Avenue this week.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Middlehand of Pontiac, moved into their new residence on Merril street, this past week.

"THREE LIVE GHOSTS" AT THE GARRICK, DETROIT

"Three Live Ghosts," unquestionably one of the best comedies to visit Detroit last season, will be the offering of the Bonstelle Company next week, beginning Monday night at the Garrick Theatre. The play is the work of that Detroit author, Frederic Dan, who is now visiting here.

Only several successful novels had at least three successful plays. While "Three Live Ghosts" does not have a big cast, it will tax the Bogstetter organization and give them unusual opportunities. The usual Summer policy of opening each play on Monday and closing on Sunday night, will prevail, the Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday matinees.
