The young people of the United Presbyterian church held their monthly business meeting, Monday evening, at the home of Miss Eleanor Wilgyn of 4th street, where their meeting was joyfully after the meeting.

Our public library is constantly enlarging and new books are being received. Books recently added to the juvenile department are "Two Years Before the Mast" by Richard Dana; "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court" by Samuel L. Clemens (Mark Twain); "Don's Tomorrow" by Wynne Heister; "Flower of Paradise" by Mrs. Emilie (Henson) Knipe; "Lost in the Air" by Roy J. Snell and "The Story of Doctor Boodle" by Hugh Lofting.

The party given by the Women's Benefit Association at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Steve Hickmott on the Square Lake road, Saturday, was pronounced a success in every detail. About seventy people from Birmingham, Pontiac, Detroit and Rochester were gathered in the spacious rooms which were very prettily decorated with autumn foliage and colors. A very pretty archway was formed of the foliage and the eglantine of the association over the entrance to the rooms which were used for dancing. A lunch was served about 11 o'clock.

No Mystery at this Bank

THE impression prevails among many people that there is something mysterious and secretive about banking. The reason for this, we believe, is a lack of the "why" of certain necessary elements in the banking business.

WHEN you are unable to determine the reason for a banking practice please consult our officers. They will consider it a pleasure to explain the "why" and the "wherefore" of banking principles.

SPENDING FIVE DOLLARS TO ADVERTISE A NICKEL ARTICLE

A merchant stated the other day, "I would be foolish to spend ten dollars advertising a five cent article. I could not get enough profit from what I sold in a week to pay for the ad."

And he was right about the last part of his sentence. He would probably not get enough profit to pay for the advertisement. But would he be foolish? Absolutely not.

When a merchant advertises some five cent article, he not only advertises that article but he advertises his store, his service, and his policies.

If a merchant has enough interest in his business to advertise any article the readers of this advertisement infer that he has other things to sell, that he is proud of the service he can give and that he is in business to please the public, not simply to accommodate them.

Advertising means much more than the direct benefits derived from any one advertisement. Advertising is worth careful thought and continued policies.

Advertising deserves a real worth while place in any business. What place has it in yours?

Have our representative call and go over this matter of advertising in THE ECCENTRIC with you.

We are ready to co-operate in every way to make your advertising pay.
