

HOW TWO WOMEN ESCAPED OPERATIONS

Doctor Advised Use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Happy Results in Both Cases

St. Joseph, Missouri. "Both of my girls... I could not move on any of my work... There was heavy pressure and pain through my lower organs and the doctor told me to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for these troubles. He said I had this one chance, and if the Vegetable Compound did not help me nothing but an operation would do. After taking several bottles I felt I was helping me and now I am able to do my own work. If my testimonial will help others I shall be glad for them to read it and hope your Vegetable Compound will do you as much good as it did me."

LIVE STOCK FACTS

SOUND POINTS ON BABY BEEF

Producer Generally Finds It Necessary to Breed His Own Stock—Well-Bred Cows Best

The producer of baby beef generally finds it necessary to breed his own stock. Calves with the conformation and quality to finish at 18 months of age are seldom bought on the market in any numbers of uniform type, and at a figure where they can be profitably fed out.

The problem for the producer of baby beef is to get his raw material of the proper quality as cheaply as possible, and in the opinion of N. K. Carnes of the live stock division at University Park, Pa., he can generally do this best by keeping a herd of real, well-bred beef cows, and by feeding and caring for them economically.

The majority of beef producers," says Mr. Carnes, "prefer to have their calves dropped in the spring of the year. The calves can run with their dams on pasture during the summer, and be weaned in the fall about the time they enter winter quarters. By this practice, the beef cows can be wintered more economically. They require less shelter and labor, and less concentrated food than when they are suckling calves.

SQUARE DEAL FOR NERO

"Nero differed little from burned"

Is one of the things that "every schoolboy knows." Like almost everything else that people know, it is at last to have its turn at being upset, proved false and spotted in the light of New Knowledge. In a New York newspaper we find this possible explanation of ancient Nero playing the Nero burned, did it not possibly result from the unfortunate translation of Suetonius by the English divine, Thomas Newton, in 1581, who renders the sentence "The incendiary Roman politician" as "He burned on the burning of the city and the temples. Nero and music may be able to clear up the difficulty under which we labor. We take the Latin on faith, and the English divine of the sixteenth century is good enough for us. But we are misled by the Latin and the English. When we are sure of it that some one is trying to give Nero a square deal, and we are always in favor of square dealing, so that we wish the movement the best of luck. Nero never did anything to us.

"Domestic silence is the secret of a happy wedded life," a minister announced from his pulpit. Now all he has to do is to prove it to a couple who happen not to speak.

Much is talked and written by foolish people about the decadence of English sports when some foreign team or crew takes a laurel from its children. The English have enjoyed the world the value of outdoor exercise. Like all good teachers, they rejoice at the proficiency of their pupils. They do not expect to retain for ever and ever a jealous hegemony in matters of sports, other methods must inevitably arise. The very presence of these foreigners is the highest possible tribute to the position held by English. Besides, it is easy to think too much of sport. There are, other fields to conquer.

CONSIDER USE OF AIRSHIPS

Possibility of Their Successful Employment in Making Aerial Observations of the Himalayas.

Consideration has been given to the possibility of aerial observations in the Himalayas. The range, it appears, has only six peaks above 27,000 feet high and an average height of about 25,000 or 24,000 feet should have no difficulty in crossing if the highest peaks were avoided, while, if the chosen route of the gorge, an altitude of some 19,000 feet would suffice. The greater of the many obstacles to be encountered is the mountain sickness, which occurs in the highest altitudes through deficiency of oxygen. The gradual climber, going aloft, is less handicapped in this respect than the aviator rising suddenly from sea level in his machine; on the other hand, the pedestrian has more fatigue to undergo, and this practically equates matters. The chief consideration in any case is an adequate supply of oxygen, with a proper inhaler.

If You Need a Medicine You Should Have the Best

Have you ever stopped to reason why it is that so many products that are extravagantly advertised, all at once drop out of sight and are "soon forgotten?" The reason is plain—the article did not fulfill the promise of the manufacturer. This applies more particularly to a medicine. A medicine prepared with the most curative value almost sells itself, as like an endless chain system the remedy is recommended by those who have benefited to those who are in need of it.

A prominent druggist says, "Take for example, Dr. Kilmor's Swamp-Root, a preparation I have sold for many years and never heard of recommending. It is every case it shows excellent results, as many of my customers testify. Their kidney remedy has so large a sale."

According to sworn statements and verified testimony of thousands who have used the preparation, the success of Dr. Kilmor's Swamp-Root is due to the fact, that it is a natural, healthful remedy, as every man in overcoming kidney, liver and bladder ailments, corrects urinary troubles and neutralizes the uric acid which causes rheumatism.

You may receive a sample bottle of Swamp-Root by parcel post. Address Dr. Kilmor & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., and enclose ten cents. Also mention this paper. Large and medium size bottles for sale at all drug stores.—Advertisement.

A further object of the establishment is to secure information for forests regarding the handling of southern trees.
