BOND ISSUE PASSES (Continued from Page One) appear at a meeting whenever he felt the need of a few dollars. A. J. Tuggey supplemented Mr. White's remarks with the suggestion that "we hire Board members by the hour, engage a timekeeper and then keep watch of attendance." Mr. White's motion finally carried.

Little objection was made when it was asked if the people of the district wanted to engage a school nurse for the coming year, and the Board was directed to hire a registered nurse to begin work this fall. The meeting closed at 9:40 o'clock. The ballots on the bond issue were counted shortly after 11 o'clock. It was learned yesterday that final plans for enlarging the heating system of the Baldwin high school will be made at the Board meeting next Monday night, after which details of the construction of the proposed addition will be made by the architects. As soon as this is done bids for actual construction work will be asked for and the work started.

Eco City News

There's a little white-haired woman in Eco, who, whether all the residents realize it or not, is the "Little City Mother." Happy and cheerful always, in her little shop each day, by her friendliness and cheery smile, she sends men and women of the city, off to their daily labors with renewed hope and courage. And at night, when they return, tired and weary, sometimes they stop for a moment to speak to the happy little woman, and then go on their way feeling somehow more cheerful and stronger. The children visit her with their childish troubles, and she gives them all the bounty of her sympathy and love. From her shop a feeling of good will and cheerfulness is sent throughout the city, and the City Mother, who is Mrs. Rowena Goldsmith, entirely unconscious of the good she is doing from day to day, is helping her city and her people to grow.

Tuesday evening, July 3, Mr. and Mrs. R. Burns of Smith avenue, entertained ten guests at a Fourth of July party.
