HENRY FORD FOR PRESIDENT

It was Emerson, we think, who said: "You may have to say, tomorrow, say what you have to say, even though it contradicts what you said yesterday." So, today, we want to boost Henry Ford for the nomination to the Presidency of the United States.

The conduct of the United States of America is not unlike the conduct that the Ford Motor Company—or any other successful concern—must give to the public to reap profit. The more real service that is rendered the people, the more will the people willingly place into it.

Henry Ford is not a politician. He caters to no man and generally gets what he goes after. And what he goes after, as far as we can ascertain, is a plan to give the public something that they want and, at the same time, provide work for thousands of men.

Ask Ford what made him successful and he will reply: "I had an ideal and I built factories, installed machinery in them; I hired men to materialize my idea; I made my factories and my men as efficient as humanly possible by cutting out all lost motion and duplication of labor."

any one thing and do another. We think things and say another. We are selfish. We are jealous of what another may have. We are never satisfied with the things we possess.

Of one thing we are absolutely convinced: that, as long as automobiles are manufactured with a potential speed that exceeds the limit allowed by law, just as long as the laws are violated. At least during this generation and the next to come. It is far too easy a job for the driver of a motor vehicle to "step on it" when the road stretches out before him.

And then there is the driver (of either sex) who is always willing to "take a chance" to get by the machine ahead upon a busy thoroughfare. He ought to be vigorously punished. There is no more dangerous animal in the jungles of mankind than the reckless driver of an automobile.

One who is found carrying a revolver is considered by the courts to be one who is a menace to society. Society has decreed that to carry a revolver implies a use for that weapon by the carrier—and to use a revolver is forbidden by society's edict.

Now that Detroit has had its "Satanic Week" we suppose its citizenry will again lapse into the quiet and serenity that attends automobile accidents and fatalities.

SHORT AND MAYBE SNAPPY

By C. R. A.

The world still continues to move on. Boston is forming its own England, takes sick and is compelled to quit his job. Lloyd George, Law's ally at the divide of destiny, has decreed that you should again be the greatest fortune ever known. It has also placed within your hands the power to lead a stricken and war-weary world into the sunlit paths of brotherhood and Christianity.

A good deal of precious "white space" in this country is given over to conjecturing Rudolph Valentino's return to the screen. If only a like amount of newspaper space were devoted to the solution of the vital problems of this country the cost of anger might be decreased.

If you find us at times pessimistic about this country it is because we are optimistic over the ultimate outcome of civilization. If we didn't think the Almighty meant the world to get better, there would be no time in criticizing.

Verdun—the French city that was besieged for four years during the late world war—boasted a pre-war population of 300,000. At a war of a hundred thousand French soldiers met their death there. Such things happen when two or more millions of minds that are twisted by greed and selfishness, bent on destruction—get together to solve a problem without understanding. Verdun, they say, will never be entirely rebuilt. It might be well not to try but to let the leaders of nations that want to wage war to the scene of Verdun and let them reflect on the slaughter they give they might then find a more bloodless way to settle their differences.

It is said that most thunderstorms come in the afternoon. This fact should not be taken literally by the feminine sex this summer when they go out in the morning without umbrellas.

Detroit is attempting to become the largest station center in the world. Plans are being made to convert the top of skyscrapers into landing places for airplanes. We hope these aviators will not in a moment of care and crashing through the roof of one of our local buildings at any time in the future. Man devised a way to take away

Enuresis (Bed-Wetting and Enuresis Tablets)

Incontinence of urine in adults, commonly known as bed-wetting in children, is more common in boys than in girls. Incontinence of bed-wetting has been considered incurable until recently beyond maturity.

Enuresis may be caused by paralysis, the retention of a large amount of urine, as in diabetes, calculus (gravel) cystitis, irritation, worms, unduly sound sleep, dream of gastric disturbances. Her parents tried many different mechanical and medicinal treatments. Seven weeks after beginning to use ENURETOL TABLETS the boy had no return of the trouble again.

Dr. W. Wayne, Michigan, Boy, 11 years. Three years ago his mother ordered four boxes of ENURETOL TABLETS and four months later the trouble had been returned.

Mr. W. Milwaukee, Wis., Age 44 years, had never had a full night's sleep, having got up four or five times each night. He had tried hot baths, saunas and was operated on twice in two different hospitals without benefit. He was cured by ENURETOL TABLETS completely three years ago, and has had no return of the troublesome condition.

F. J. J. Minnesota, 75 years old, is no less interesting. For over 25 years he suffered with incontinence of urine, day and night. As he grew old the trouble increased, having to pass water every half hour or oftener. Had a stroke of paralysis which increased the trouble to such an extent that only a few drops of bloody urine could be voided with intense pain, causing surgeons to suspect cancer of the bladder. Being placed on ENURETOL, at the dose of two tablets every two hours with a glass of cool water or milk, the tenesmus disappeared in twelve hours and he had a good restful sleep. Mr. F. J. is now 75 years old and has had no return of the trouble since.

It is important to regulate the diet and overeating, coffee and acid foods should be used.

ENURETOL TABLETS are absolutely safe and harmless, being a tonic for the kidneys, bladder and nervous system.

It is especially weak, nervous, slow growing, languid children. A fair trial of ENURETOL TABLETS will convince you of their value.
