This smoker says Edgeworth gets better and better. But it doesn't—and no "improvements" are contemplated. To begin with, we had better quote Mr. Whitlock's letter in full. Not in a boastful spirit, but so we can refer back to it farther down in the column.

2844 Acorn Street, Louisville, Missouri. Larus & Brother Company, Richmond, Va. I wish to take this opportunity to say that I think of you every day. I have been a pipe smoker for about 20 years and during that time have naturally tried many different brands and brands of tobacco. I could not find any that I liked as well as Edgeworth's. I have been a constant user of Edgeworth's since I tried it. I have found that it is a real treat to smoke Edgeworth's. I have no hesitation in recommending it to you. I have no hesitation in recommending it to you. I have no hesitation in recommending it to you.

We are indeed glad Edgeworth has given Mr. Whitlock such unqualified satisfaction, but we feel obliged to state that we do not step his suggestion that "day by day in every way Edgeworth is getting better and better." Our conclusion is that Edgeworth is quite to the contrary. Just as it is, Edgeworth is the pleasure thousands and thousands of pipe smokers throughout the country.

LEGION WORKER HAS NO LEGS. State Adjutant of the Department of Idaho Does Not Allow Handicap to Interfere. Handicapped? Lester F. Albert, state adjutant of the Department of Idaho of the American Legion, considers no physical disability an insurmountable obstacle. For this intrepid veteran of the World War, who at the battle of Cantigny lost both legs and suffered other serious wounds, has not faltered in performance of his work since his return to civilian life.

Then came illness. The doctor told him that disease contracted while serving in the American Legion during the war would necessitate an operation. Recently he went onto the operating table. The next day he was dead. When but a lad of fifteen, Kosmen, heir of a once wealthy and influential Albanian family, had been sent to Greece to escape the Turks. His father was killed by them. Before he left he was betrothed, according to the custom of his country, to baby Aspasia Gerdan. In following years he fought his way out of the hands of the Turks, wounded, escaped and finally came to the United States where he set to work to build up a comfortable home for his remaining loved ones. Before he left he was betrothed, according to the custom of his country, to baby Aspasia Gerdan.

TO CO-OPERATE WITH BUREAU. Legion Will Assist Veterans' Branch In Aiding Former Warriors Serving Time in Institutions.

Disabled Fellows Show Pep. Legion Rehabilitation Officials Pled Afflicted Men Make Good if Given Fair Chance. It has always been the contention of American Legion rehabilitation officials that if the disabled man is given an equal start with those about him, he will succeed in making good. This is borne out in many instances, but in perhaps none more clearly than at the North Dakota Agricultural college, where 100 Veterans' Bureau trainees are in attendance. Names of five of these ex-soldiers on the honor roll of the school when they were discharged in proportion of approximately 20 per cent of the total number of trainees enrolled as against 1 per cent of the other students who are graduates of the school.

A Market Overlooked. Excitedly the manufacturer of the World's Greatest Insect Exterminating Powder burst into the export manager's office. "Hey! you ain't seen 'em? 'Have we got an agency in Egypt?" "Well, why ain't we? I see a movie of them pyramids last night and it says they were covered with millions of 'em." "American Legion Weekly."

Legion Aid is Demanded. The help of the American Legion is demanded in many communities for every question of civic development. Recently the school board of the town of Mont. where school funds are low and the local post of the Legion has undertaken to provide the school gymnasium with a basketball court. Several local citizens are planning for the post in order to raise the funds for this purpose.

Red Cross Expects $700,000. Expenditures. $700,000 since July 1, 1917, for the benefit of World War fighters have been made by the Red Cross. Information to the American Legion is being received at national headquarters of the American Legion. The figures cover the five-year fiscal period up to June 30, 1922.

Lester F. Albert.

CHAPTERED both his legs; wore off a finger of his right hand and suffered many severe body wounds. Only immediate surgical aid, followed by blood transfusion, was responsible for saving Albert's life. After a long period in a government hospital at Fort Snelling, Minn., he returned to his home in Idaho, and took his chances with an electrical engineer.

His activity in the organization of the American Legion in Idaho brought him recognition from hundreds of ex-soldiers men of the state and at the first annual convention he was named to the post of department commander. He has held this position since that time, and at the last convention was elected for a three-year period.

Mr. Albert's determination for rehabilitation in spite of the injury he suffered has won the admiration of Legionnaires all over the country. In getting the best out of his condition he carries on his work, the extent of the injury is never thought of. He considers that physical handicap will be a factor in the fight against it.

It is probable that the new plan will be first tried out in the federal prisons at Atlanta, Leavenworth and McNeil Island, Seattle. Veterans' Bureau physicians meet weekly at the local vocational schools elsewhere if facilities for such education were not available at the penal institutions.

FOR THE BRIDE'S MOTHER; VAGARIES IN PRINTED SILKS

RICH, STRAIGHT-LINE DRESS OF MIL MOIRE. If there is anyone privileged to vie with the bride in the distinction of her toilette, it is that happy young person's mother. And the mother of the groom will aspire to do as well. These older women may or may not be youthful in appearance—that has little to do with the success of their costumes. It is the poise and carriage of maturity which lends to them a distinction that can dare to challenge youth and the modes are kind to them, presenting a long array of fascinating styles for matrons.

From the tomb of an ancient Egyptian king inspirations for all-thrills have sprung and are springing. Naturally the art of the Egyptian has been most quickly and universally reflected in women's apparel—in fabrics, embroideries, draperies, colors and jewelry.

PRINTED SILK SUMMER OF KING TUT. shows a wide facing of the crepe, which reappears in a vest at the front of the bodice. Long sleeves, set in a deep armhole, are sloped to fit the shoulders and both the bodice and skirt are simply draped—but by an expert.

WAGTIME, GREAT U. S. ART. "It's with me, too," so far America, the hot polo, if you will (but the hot polo is the nation), has not said anything except with music. National restlessness lives in the scintillating slouch of hair, writes Mrs. Cass Chubb in the New Republic. In the past the innocence of ragtime leapt out America's own efficiency and lack of reflection, its good nature, its self-consciousness, its childish and oddly pathetic crying for sympathy. It is the noise that fills the empty room, it is the laughing for movement and color of those who sit in pecking cases and look in vain for beauty and rhythm up and down Main street. It is laboratory music in its effort by coquer vacuum find the form of the talking machine is its most-mouthed interpreter, generously underestimating the violent cheerfulness of its associate.

The ethnologist of young men are one of the most splendid spectacles life affords. When they are called to patriotic deeds they are things that only boys or knaves would scoff at. It is an other aspect in which men should hasten as slowly as in the political world. Youth and enthusiasm (they do not always go together, for they are sometimes gray heads on green shoulders) are things that give the correcting advantage of nature and the age. The middle age angle is perhaps only a compromise between the rival ones of youth's enthusiasms and the reaction of old age. But in politics at least the compromise angle is the one likely to be the long run to be the right one.

Athletic sports are still very France, but art there is old and mature and has been woven into the national fabric. Football, lawn tennis, running, etc., have been embraced by the Gaul with enthusiasm, but his has not for that reason abandoned his delight in the fine arts and is not ready to sacrifice the latter for the pleasure of a physical prowess, says the New Orleans Times-Picayune. This we deduce from the plans just perfected for celebration of the coming olympiad, which will be held in France next year. In ancient Greece, despite a certain amount of amateurism, was given recognition during the Olympic festivities and France now proposes for the first time to revive that admirable custom. In addition to the many forms of athletics for which high honors will be awarded, the French nation proposes to hold contests in the five arts—architecture, sculpture, painting, music and literature.

When it is officially announced that 84 per cent of the automobiles in the United States are owned in the United States, it is not surprising to understand why crossing a street has become such a hazardous business.

Statistics show that the per capita consumption of eggs in the United States is one-half of an egg a day. Just possibly that is where the hens get their idea that they are giving us an even break.

WOULD NEVER BE WITHOUT IT. "Only With Mothers World Use More of Father John's Medicine." Mothers will be interested in this letter from Mrs. Robinson. She says: "If all mothers would only try Father John's Medicine they would never be without it in the home. In January my two boys had the measles. After they got up I began giving them Father John's Medicine. They began getting better and their cough stopped. Since then Father John's Medicine has been our mainstay; I only wish mothers would use more of this medicine. They would have less doctor bills." (Signed) Mrs. F. Robertson, 9 Whipple Circle, Greenwich, N. Y. The Greatest Baby Balm.
