SHOE SUGGESTIONS FOR MEN

The picture tells the story. Men. If you want a REAL pair of shoes that actually make your feet feel better, let us show you this one.

For the man who wants to keep his ankles warm, yet appear well-dressed, this shoe has no equal. They are priced very reasonable, too.

Carolyn Bayne's Column

(Letters to Carolyn Bayne must be written on one side of the paper only. Sign the name by which you wish to be known in the column. If you do not wish your letter to appear under your real name, you may use an assumed name. Questions pertaining to the busy life of men and women may be answered through the column.)

My Dear Miss Bayne:
I am a young business woman, make a good appearance, am considered a good company and have traveled and read enough to be intelligent and seem to make a favorable impression wherever I go.
I find my disgust that the ideal girl in the average man's estimation is one who has a constant flow of tears and a dress in a time sense and who "reaps" a young man for an evenings entertainment with a lot of loving and petting. I want to be popular but seem to be considered "so superior" because I will not stoop to these things—I get so discouraged because I lack men friends but cannot "sex" allowing myself to be "mauled" by every man that shows me a "good time." Where can I find a man of high ideals who respects a girl who keeps her lips and corsets for the only man.

My Dear Girl:
Do not lower your standards and you will be repaid some day by the type of really "good" man that you class of men to which you refer are a pick to society. They are not selling you to get when they see the woman they want for the mother of their children it will not be a girl who has been mauled, kissed and petted by every male member of her set.
What is to become of our rising young manhood and womanhood if this disgraceful petting continues? A prominent English novelist has said that in all European countries a girl would dare to go to the point with a man's nature that the American girl would not do with a man's nature. When a man begins to seek diversion outside his home, as a rule, he is one of two types. Either he is naturally fickle (than which there is nothing more difficult to manage) and he will not be satisfied with himself and his hope as attractive as possible.
There are two ways were sufficient for your husband. It is your part of the bargain to continue to be. I sincerely hope that you may find a situation with the idea of discovering wherein you have fallen short. If this suggestion does not suffice, let me hear from you again. I shall be interested to know the outcome.

FIGHT!!!
Upon entering any of the dormitories in town, one hears a bedlam of human voices. Deeper investigation discloses a group of fellows—some students, some not—discussing the results of the last game and the prospects of the next one.
In every group the theme is the same: "Gee, we haven't the team we used to have, it is nothing like last year." And there is none to dispute the statement. So far, we haven't the team we had last year. The reason? Last year's team was composed almost entirely of seniors and only three were left as a nucleus for this year's team. Is it fair to harp on the fact that they aren't as good as last year's team? They realize their inexperience, but they feel even more sad because they know that their students are not backing them.
Are we going to rest on the laurels of last year's team? Or are we going to at least try to get behind them? Remember the football team is fighting for B. H. S. on the field; but that is only half of the contest. The other half is your fight—your spirit on the sidelines. Are you holding up your half of the fight or are you trying to put it all onto the shoulders of our team? Let us all get out back the Maroon and White until every other team will see that we all mean business. The past is dead—the present is here—the future will be what we make it. A train will not run without an engine. The engine will not go far without the coal tender. You are the coal tender—the stimulus our team needs. Let's see you fight as they are fighting.

UNSPORTSMANLIKE REMARKS HEARD IN HOME BLEACHERS
We've found it!
Yes, we have found a school with less spirit than we have. We out yelled and outnumbered and the team out-gamed them.
It is rumored that in the future, we will play football games at Pontiac in the first week of September days since a shade tree is the best dressing room that majestic metropolis can offer.
Birmingham's tackling was spectacular one moment and deplorable the next. While it is poor policy to speak of any individual, too much cannot be said of the manner in which the sub acquires themselves. One of the "Lemons," number thirteen, is a familiar figure in our streets; Fred Davis played in the closing frames. In the second quarter our own "Sparky" was ejected for too many penalties during the first half. However, there is no protest due from Pontiac. They incurred more penalties during the second half. The hour of play which indicates something besides football on their part. Defeated, but not discouraged, they began, hold Pontiac to one touchdown in second half. Saturday afternoon Pontiac uncovered the best aerial attack in many a season on their home field. It seems as if Fate had conspired against the Maroon clad warriors. But game determinedly they fought on against a stronger, heavier team that was aided in every possible way by the surroundings. The field was a wretched sandy lot full of holes, dust and sand burrs. Added to this was the fact that the whole field was on a noticeable slope to the west making it an uphill fight geographically as well as athletically.
After looking foolish under that forward passing the Legion during the first half, Birmingham, minus two regulars, battered, bruised, but not beaten, began to play foot ball. Pontiac's passing became wild and ineffective, her plunges netted little, aside from one slip (which scored a touchdown). Her end runs were fruitless, so she contented herself by a defensive game during the closing periods.

The Junior class of the Baldwin High School held their first party last Friday evening, at the home of Agnes Baynes, one of the members of the class. About thirty-five Juniors turned out to this party. They met at the high school at five—the next night they went on their destination in automobiles. Lunch was served in Baynes' mellow patch, and the girls acquired themselves with marshmallows, cider and melons. A mysterious disappearance of a jug of cider caused some alarm, but the rascal got away with the goods.

The teachers, chaperoning the party, proved that the old saying, "Teachers can't be full of fun" is false. All enjoyed themselves and were entertained with a few selections by the Junior Boys Quartette who were amusing themselves by singing some jolly tunes. They were stationed in an old wood shed where they thought no one would discover them, but the class stationed themselves out side the door and applauded them when they finished.
The coach had ordered the boys to be in bed at ten o'clock, so the party broke up and the happy people wended their homeward ways.

Columbus Day
October Twelfth

COLUMBUS' life and achievements are so rich with helpful lessons that it is difficult to stress any particular one upon this, his anniversary.

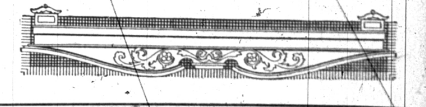

Shall we hold most significant that he sailed for the old Indies and found a new one, richer by far than the one that was his goal?

Or shall we pay homage to the courage that held him straight upon his course despite the influence of his companions?

Whichever we choose, no one can lose who applies to his own life the unquenchable ambition and unflinching courage of Columbus, the discoverer of America.
