(Editor's Note: This is one of a series of articles...

AUGUST 25, 1907.

A Little More About The "Mystery Of Life."

I wish to direct attention to an article which appears on this page today, headed "The Cabinet Organ..."

The original Wesleyan Methodists were, I think, the first to discard the popular secular song tunes of the day...

Children educated in this way, of course, never to be contented with mere organ music of any kind...

trous consequences referred to? I unhesitatingly answer: The failure of parents to train their girls from infancy to be modest and retiring...

I notice also that when pianos are introduced into Christian homes—and such is now almost universally the case...

I am asked: "Of the eight causes which you suggested on August 11, when you commented on the Ladies' Home Journal's 'Mystery of Life' articles..."

Laic Has More to Say About The "Mystery of Life?" "A Children's Nurse" is glad that "The Home Journal's" article that "I also have taken up the subject of life has been subject..."

She then tells of some concrete cases which have recently come to her attention...

The six-year-old boy that the nurse tells of had been allowed to roam the streets and playgrounds...

In conclusion this correspondent adds: "I know that while children are being reared in the homes of other known disease, doctors and nurses both will let children roam..."

without any knowledge of the mysteries of life, and denied an equal natural gift to man? I think not.

The Question of Co-Education and Higher Education in General. More and more professional educators are getting to see that the co-education of the sexes, particularly in the higher grades of the public schools and in colleges...

The age at which children enter the high school is a most critical period. Physiologic changes are taking place that almost demand separate courses of study for boys and girls...

"There is no objection to having boys and girls occupy the same rooms, where available funds necessitate it..."

Eco City News Peace of City Disturbed Monday morning the stillness of Eco was broken by a terrific explosion...

Church Social The Bannville A.V. Congregational church held a very successful social at the church last Friday evening...

Ruffner Avenue to Have Sidewalks. The property owners of Ruffner avenue, having tired of waiting for the city to make some move toward getting sidewalks in before winter...

"Shadow Social" will be held at the Bannville avenue church, this Friday evening...
