CELEBRATE 100th Anniversary Of Settlement Here

Mrs. George E. Phillips and her daughter, Miss Annette Phillips, of Thornbrook, of Adams road, were guests at the Needham Hemingway family reunion last Thursday afternoon at Flint in Thread Lake Park. More than 200 relatives gathered for the annual reunion. The occasion is the 100th anniversary of the coming to Michigan from New York of their ancestor, Colonel Hemingway, in 1824.

In 1825 the Colonel and his family settled temporarily in Pontiac in 1827 he built the first frame house in Oakland township at Goodison, which is still standing. A little later he built a saw mill at Orion and dammed up the creek which threw together a chain of lakes and the present Lake Orion. The Colonel died in 1833 and his fifteen children still survive. They are Mrs. David Rowley of Detroit, 92 year old and Mrs. A. Fuller of Vermontville, 83 years of age. At the 100th anniversary of the annual reunion, the Hemingway family is coming to Michigan it was found that he had 850 lineal descendants.

BENEFIT BARN DANCE TUESDAY WILL CROWN LOCAL SOCIAL SEASON

The whole country-side breathlessly awaits the Barn Dance at Dunwoody corner, to be held Tuesday night to be opened. The women of the National Woman's Party of the local District are concentrating every effort on the affair which happens next Tuesday, August 26, at nine in the evening.

Committees are vying, one with another to make their part in the dance. The committee especially consisting of Mrs. George I. Hendrie, Mrs. Nelson Whitmore and Mrs. Wallace J. Frost, report unusual activity in their camp.

The dance promises to be the crowning event of the season. The barn will be a perfect bewilderment of leaves and flowers in purple, white and gold. The weather will be delightfully "right" because the weather man has been committed on that score and the orchestra will be the "very best in Oakland County."
