

"Buddie" Loses Parents - But He Makes Trip Alone

By Phyllis E. Myers. Current in the world are scores of stories of the marvelous sense of direction possessed by dogs, cats, birds, and, in fact, almost every sort of beast and bird.

The most useless mongrel, whose master tries to "lose" him or drown him—so the story goes—always returns home before his owner. Figures have been known to return to a starting place after being released thousands of miles away. Cats with their heads and a stone anchored to their heads have the uncanny habit of presenting themselves at the family hearth a few hours later, still in possession of all nine lives. Some people even maintain that animals and birds have a sense of direction to distance not possessed by human beings. However, there are always two sides to every argument and the other side of this one was discovered last Saturday by an Eco City family.

The Schools and The Railroads

Teachers in Michigan's primary schools are being supported, to a large degree, by taxes paid by the state's steam Railroads. In many counties, the whole cost of these schools is carried in this way. Michigan is justly proud of these schools, and of the capable teachers who preside over them. And Michigan's 24 Railroads are proud of the result which their tax payments have made possible. These primary school taxes have become a part of the delicate balance which laws have established between Railroad receipts and expenditures. This balance can be preserved with a steady and continued improvement in Railroad service; as the past two years have amply proved. To destroy this balance by increasing Railroad taxes, or by imposing any additional burden on your carriers, would be a calamity for the Railroads and a severe blow at Michigan prosperity. All we ask is a fair chance to keep on making good for you. Write us freely about any phase of this matter that interests you.

The exact reaction upon Buddie when he discovered that his father accompanied other members of the Maxwell Salesmen Association of Detroit on a picnic at Bob-lo-Lo two weeks ago. Everything went along splendidly until folks began to toss the Detroit boat later in the afternoon. "Of course, Mother and Daddy would be taking that one," so figured Buddie. Laughlin, 9 years old, and he went down to the water with the departing crowd, and was put aboard the "Columbia" by the dock policeman.

When they came their anxiety changed to tender smiles. There lay Buddie, curled up in a ball and sound asleep.

Inside the community house the more portable articles will be displayed in numerous small booths. The entire house will be turned over to the League when on September 13. The scene of the fair will follow custom this year and lead the street on West street, between Chesler and Bates streets.

Vacation Days Will Soon Be a Silent Memory

(By Phyllis E. Myers)
Wow! School begins Tuesday and aren't the kids mad? Who said so? 'Deed they are not, even if they won't admit it. They're just plain school-sick, just as some people get home-sick.

How do we know—that lad or lassie has betrayed the secret order of childhood by admitting such a thing? No, sir, you're wrong; the school-sick is not the child, but the "fussy" nor teacher's pet. It wasn't exposed by a "regular guy" or the most popular little girl, but we've been seeing them lately ourselves and hearing 'em.

During the last two weeks Superintendent Vliet has been receiving numerous phone calls, which run something like this: "Hello, is this Mr. Vliet? Well, do you know when school will open? Is it still going to be the same day after Labor Day? Will I have the same teacher I had last year?" Or, "I would like to have my seat changed; the Jimmie Jenks that sat behind me all last year is just getting too smart for himself."

Mr. Vliet doesn't mind that at all, neither is he adverse to being guided through the different grade schools. Whenever he is at any of the Birmingham schools, he's sure to find a number of children poking about in the classrooms, trying to get a glimpse of his own best. And they ultimately see him there. Do they get self-conscious for being discovered of all things, inside of school during vacation? Hardly, instead they get up to the tall, kindly man, take hold of his hand and shyly ask him to give them this seat or that one, to start school a few days earlier than scheduled and to be sure to give them the favorite teacher.

He smiles broadly—again the favorite legend of kids that hate to come after vacation has been shattered. He is satisfied.

OBITUARY

AMOS SEELYE HOWLAND
After a short illness, Amos Seelye Howland passed away at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Ross Hutchins of Knox street on Tuesday, August 26, at the age of 66 years. Funeral services in charge of Rev. Mr. Blackford, who is presiding at St. James Episcopal Church this summer in the absence of Rev. G. H. McCurdy, were held yesterday from the Hutchins home at 2:30 p. m. Interment was in Greenwood Cemetery. Mr. Howland whose home is in Commerce, leaves a wife, Josephine Howland and a son, Bert, both of Commerce.

WILLIAM NEWHAM

On Wednesday, August 27, at the age of 76 years, William Newham died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Herbert Shave of Ann street. Services by Rev. Mr. Blackford were held last evening at 8:00 p. m. from the home of his daughter, the body and casket were shipped to Augusta, Georgia, for burial. There it will be taken charge of by three of his surviving sons, Fred, of Greensboro, North Carolina; Leonard, of Greenville, North Carolina; and Harry, of New Orleans, Alabama. Other survivors are a son Arthur, in London, England, and two daughters, Nellie, also of London, and Agnes, of South Africa.

Churches Disband Union Services

Like other phases of village life, the churches will return with 247 tender to the former congregation which was altered somewhat during the summer vacation. Three denominations, Methodist, Baptist and Presbyterian, on whose Sunday evening services have been combined for the past five weeks, will begin this Sunday evening with their individual services. Beginning on the last Sunday in June the following three services were held in the First Presbyterian Church with the three ministers of the churches alternating in the delivery of the sermons. The last three services were in the Baptist church, the services conducted in the same fashion, and likewise when the Methodist church had the final three united meetings. No special service is contemplated.

for this first Sunday back in the old ways, the three ministers said this was a fitting way to begin about as they did in the spring. The three ministers unanimously expressed themselves as the opinion that the combined services were undeniably successful and would likely continue another year.

Pulpit of the Press

LAW ENFORCEMENT.
By Rev. W. C. McKnight, First Presbyterian Church.
I read with great interest of interest, and I need hardly add with approbation, the Rev. Julian West's contribution entitled "The Pulpit of the Press." I said a hearty "Amen" to it all. America certainly must have "backbones" enough to enforce her laws. May I presume to follow Mr. West's article with something of the same.

Last Saturday, up here in Chattanooga there are many good and great things are born. I happened to sit in a conference on Law Enforcement which was part of the 50th Anniversary of the organization of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. In 1874 here in Chattanooga a number of Christian women gathered and the Women's Christian Temperance Union was the result. The work they undertook started as a "Crusade" against the Liquor Traffic. Today the organization numbers in the United States a half of a million of consecrated Christian women whose purpose is just as earnest and just as honest as it was fifty years ago. And if there are those who happen to get "blue" or discouraged relative to the Prohibition movement, let them just get a vision of these half million consecrated women with their purpose and determination voiced by such leaders as Miss Anna Gordon and Mrs. Ella Hoole and Mrs. Helen Barrett Montgomery.

Mr. West refers to the District Attorney in Chicago, the man who most truly has the right to help make Chicago "dry." From a very thorough survey of the whole subject, and an honest Mrs. Montgomery in one of her addresses pointed to these facts: "There is about an equal number of those who are discouraged relative to the Prohibition movement as there are those who are not. The fact that the non-faithful made this year show a strong victory for the dry. It is all right for Mr. Robert LaFollette to make the statement that Prohibition is not an accident of time, facts and nominations show otherwise."

It looks very much to me, Mr. Editor, that "The Association vs. Prohibition" has reckoned without the word "In." It has forgotten this great army of earnest, honest, consecrated, praying, Christian women—a half million strong organized half a century ago and in all that time has not lost its objective. A more determined army than ever before and today they have not only an influence but a voice that they are not to be forgotten as well as to use their influence. And this exhortation applies to Primary elections as well as to regular elections. Prohibition did not come by accident but by plan. In the same way let's hold it.
