Christmas Tree Felled By Wind

Friday Night

Panic filled the hearts of all "Young Eco" Friday morning when they awoke to find their decorated tree tilted at a perilous angle. The tree, which had been placed in the lot at the entrance to the building, was blown over by a heavy gust of wind. The tree was so tilted that it was possible to see the branches of the tree over the roof of the building. The tree was blown over by a heavy gust of wind. Your Question AND ITS ANSWER

QUESTION: "My little boy of nine is puny and undeveloped. He does not romp and play like other children and is sick most of the time. Will adjustments be good for him? Are they easy to take?"

ANSWER:—Recently the Board of Health in one of our large cities announced that an examination of the school children of that city revealed more than three-fourths of them deficient physically or mentally because of spinal defects. Since the cause of so many child ailments found in the spine, isn't it sane, logical conclusion that correction of this spinal abnormality will correct the cause of the child's physical weakness? That's exactly what Chiropractic will do for your child; if upon examination, we find a condition that needs correction. Spinal Adjustments are easy to take.
