Some Want 'Er 200 Feet Wide, Others Say 100 Feet Wide Enough

No one really knows what is to be done about a wider Woodward avenue through Birmingham, but nearly everyone is interested in the idea that seems practical. The opinions of the property owners and merchants on the subject were stated in last week's paper. The remaining ones are as follows: When Wiley Bell of Bell's Undertaking Establishment was asked what he thought about the idea, he replied, "Widen Woodward avenue and make it 200 feet through Birmingham. If it is to be one of the finest roads in the state, we do not want it broken up. This town does not need another road, it needs the Grand Trunk Railway is now."

Corvill Willing To Be Re-Nominated

On School Board

It has been announced this week that R. J. Corvill, whose term expires this year, will be a candidate for re-election to the School Board at their annual meeting to be held in the Baldwin Auditorium next Monday evening. Besides the election of officers, such matters as a school board report, the presentation of the secretary's and treasurer's reports and the discussion of school matters will be taken up at a meeting on Monday and the audit has been made this week by Robert Dyck, auditor of the school board.

Bank Was Ordered In Fall Of 1921 Under Commission Headed By Clizbe

Banking Commission

Birmingham is now the possessor in actual free and clear title of the 300,000 gallon steel storage tank which has been in use at the water works station for over two years. And this is written in the final chapter of a story that has kept center stage in the town in almost constant embroilment for many months—though the controversy seems to have abated across the portals of the commission chamber in a sort of way to public office. The tender admission, "Beware, gentlemen, eye lend an ear as well as an eye to the tenets of our sacred village charter."

REGISTER WITH TOWNSHIP IF NOT ALREADY SIGNED UP

While re-registration in the village of Birmingham is unnecessary for the approaching Presidential election, it is necessary for all voters to register with their township office.
