For the last half of the week Frank Mayo and a stellar screen cast of artists will be seen in a film version of Jos. Hergeshimer's great story of Florida swamp land, "Wild Oranges."

Another item of interest to patrons of the Baldwin is the presentation there of "The Royal Oak Scandals of 1924"

It is an admitted fact that among civil servants, firemen, policemen and risks and usually receive the least compensation for their efforts and hazards.

The sets built for Mary Pickford's production "Rosita," her latest United Artists attraction coming to the Royal Theatre for an extended engagement, probably establishes a new record for number of sets constructed for a single motion picture.

Forty-six complete structures were erected at the Pickford-Fairbanks studios, exclusive of draperies and flat backings, in use used.

The cathedral interior is 300 feet long, of massive construction with gigantic pillars and arches, presenting one of the most impressive sets ever built for a photoplay.

Gales of Laughter Attend "The Jazz King" at the Garrick, Detroit

To those who love to go to the theatre to laugh, the opportunity will be afforded them next Sunday evening when Lew Fields, the famous comedian, will be the attraction in "The Jazz King" at the Garrick theatre.

Fields is most admirably cast as an old musician, who finds that in order to earn a livelihood is compelled to obtain employment in a music publisher's establishment in New York where jazz and ragtime music is manufactured.
