The Super-Salesman KEEPS BUSINESS GOING

When sales begin to slacken, the super-salesman redoubles his efforts and gets business by constantly using Long Distance.

He keeps covering more territory—he goes after more prospects and keeps orders coming in by using Long Distance.

In three hours he can talk, by Long Distance, with prospects that he would not be able to call upon, in person, in weeks.

Business houses can help their salesmen by including in their catalogs and literature, directions for the placing of orders by Long Distance.

The saving of time and money to producer, wholesaler and retailer is reflected in the cost to the consumer.
