Our Public Schools are intended to develop the mind for the storing of knowledge and to know the processes by which it is obtained and applied to all of life.

Education is one of the most stupendous and difficult tasks which confront a nation. It involves questions of finance, industrial organization, labor, of rigid curriculum in some industries and of enormous expansion in others.

The teaching of some one brand of religion in the secular schools carries the objection of many parents. He asks, but the question of not teaching any spiritual or moral education to a person is not a question of the heart and the proper application of the facts of life are real reverence for God and the obedient child.

It follows, however, that if we are to have a real moral life and an intense sense of right, we must create false systems of ethics which will be accepted by many generations.

to come in and practice on a during the week, and the music teacher from the academy used to teach our class in music. I remember was a Mrs. Emily Tindall and she always led the singing in the school room.

"Usually about once a week a china painting teacher came from a class in painting. Some of the girls were studying water painting and oil colors, too."

"I remember, the tuition amount to $65 in those days. The teaching was a very simple matter; we had recitation in those days. The piano was the course that we had in the village."
