The winter work of the Loyal Ladies Society of the Bannville avenue Congregational Church started last Thursday when they held their first meeting in the church. The win-plans made for a bazaar to be held in November. Next Thursday afternoon the society will hold a reception in the church when every member will bring a friend. Mrs. F. Forsyth of Detroit will give an address besides several special musical numbers. Thursday evening of next week the ladies will entertain their friends and husbands at a social in the church with refreshments and a splendid program.

More pupils have already enrolled than were expected and it is now a certainty that one of the larger rooms in the new addition will have to be made ready for a session room in the middle of the year when more students enter the Junior high school from the Hill school.

One of the courses that has proved most popular this year, and which is comparatively new, are the various phases of the commercial course. Nearly one-half of the entire enrollment in the Junior and senior high schools are taking one or more of the cases the work is already assisting the pupil through school. This is positions about town after school hours have furnished means for these students to help themselves and this feature is probably responsible for the popularity of the course.

The faculty in charge of this phase of the work reports that in several instances graduate students in the course last year are holding responsible positions now. In the County and State Typing and Shorthand contests last year local high school students won three places of prominence. This was the first year that a prize had been won in the contest by contestants from this section of the state.
