SOCIETY

Groups In Charge Of St. James' Fair Waiting For Day

Affair On West Maple Avenue Will Be Bigger Than Ever

Filling the market basket, buying the new fall wardrobe for all the family, completing the house furnishings, buying gifts for a year in advance or stocking the linen chests, is but one of the features of the St. James' street fair which is now only one week off, on Saturday, September 13. Another striking feature of this fair is that, unlike the benefit affairs since the beginning of time, the prices on all articles will be set by a committee of women from all of the groups.

From the opening of the fair at noon with a business men's plate luncheon and continuing through the sale of "lovlies" during the afternoon and evening, a reasonable price will be strictly adhered to.

Lists of all the articles to be placed on sale by the seven groups for the fair were given the general chairman, Mrs. Charles J. Shain, this week. Everything, to be imagined in the saleable articles from eggs to gowns has been anticipated by some group, to make the fair a real shopping opportunity. Assisted by the group chairman, Miss Sarah Sly, also treasurer for the fair, will decide upon the lowest possible price for each article. The community house on West Maple avenue, with its long aisles of tables containing varying merchandise, will resemble a department store. About the big lawn the midway of the fair will hold forth with literally hundreds of original ideas.

The Quarton Lake Group, consisting of Mesdames Earl Smith, Fredrick Riker, Raymond Reilly, Fenton Russell, Robert Bagers, William Reilly, H. G. Muehlman, C. C. Charlton, Julian Case, E. H. Bingham, and Irwin Neff are making the daintiest layettes imaginable, including crib covers, dresses, and even tea parties sets.

The Tooting Lane Group have luncheon sets of all kinds and colors, pastel hued lingerie sets, which include even gowns. This group has been meeting each week for luncheon and has had almost 100 per cent attendance. They are: Mesdames Earl A. Stone, T. T. Irving, Chas. H. Carr, W. Eagan, John H. Garden, R. H. Mann, Chas. E. Buck, George A. Moore, Harry W. Potter, George Raynale, J. W. Baldwin, J. Irwin Neff, B. McCutcheon, E. E. Monahan, and Sarah Sly.

Mrs. Tunis Miner has come in all summer from Pine Lake to meet with her group. This is an unusually large one, consisting of Mesdames F. W. Boynton, Eugene Brooks Sr., R. A. Palmer, L. C. Robinson, Waldo Fellows, L. G. Stauch, M. J. Kates, A. G. Welch, L. A. Morgan, J. B. Williams, John Saunders, Godfrey Strelinger, Howard M. Cox, G. M. Dwelley, C. F. Craig, Fred Trumbull, John Lamb, J. B. McCormick, Russell Gore, Joseph Hinshaw, Leigh Lynch, Stowe Baldwin, and Miss May Thompson. They have all manner of stencil articles, curtains, cords, buffet scarfs, and beautiful summer quilt which is the gift of Mrs. Eugene Brooks Sr.

The Southfield Avenue group of which Mrs. Archie Utley is chairman, includes Mesdames W. G. Wall, C. E. Dewar, Walter Pratt, A. E. Powers, W. B. Brown, D. W. Hawksworth, Walter Roby, George Strelinger Emma Hupp, W. W. Carpenter, Adelle Baker, Walter Boyer, C. B. Haskins, H. O. Ead, John Gaffill, C. K. Latham, and Miss Maude Hulbert. Their unique contribution is to be fireside gowns. These are in the most fetching colors and promise to be a popular and unique feature.

The humdrum apron is no more. It will appear in gayer colors than the butterfly. Mrs. F. J. Miller, assisted by Mesdames C. V. Heth, street, Bert Gravlin, J. N. Hadjisky, F. C. Weller, C. C. Wilmot, F. W. Bennett, A. H. D. Cardine, H. L. McCurdy, Hector Grant, Herbert Shave, F. C. Prentiss, Sophie Lee Case, R. C. Hutchinson, Ernest Burtraw, M. S. Mahan, and F. Brown, have canvassed the cities and towns round-about for the most attractive linens and ginghams.

The Ravine Road group, consisting of Mrs. T. A. Williamson, Walter M. Giles, J. W. Crawford, William H. Wilmot, Harry J. Connine, Ward Cruickshank, Lawrence Thomas, A. J. Rouse, E. F. Smithson, George Singer, Verne Burnett, Walter Binnon, M. B. Horton, and E. L. Harper will present lamp shades, parasol tea cozies, and card tables covers.

Household linens, including sheets and towels, pillow cases and boudoir pillows, will be the gifts of the Pierce street group. Mesdames E. W. Illett, N. T. Shaw, F. T. Reinhart, Kirke Hoagg, Charles C. L. Hommedieu, L. M. Baker, C. L. Platts, W. H. Stephens, Ed. Smith, C. J. Shain and F. D. Farrar.

Harris, who is now in the east to bring the articles back with her. Mrs. Walter Morley will preside over an enticing delicatessen table and Mrs. George T. Hendrie will be in charge of a dairy booth consisting of milk, cream, eggs, butter, and cheese.

Ross on Willetts street Friday, during a 24 hour leave. During the summer Murray has been on board the S. S. Frank Seither and will finish the season on the boat.
