Orphans' Fairy Tale Realized With Gift

Do fairy tales and dreams creame true?

The tiny wards of St. Vincent's or phan asylun. for girls at Syracus, N. Y., declare that they do—if on wishes hard enough and long enough wishes hard enough to knew, for just jes

Being an orphan doesn't pryvent one from wishing, and for a long time these little girls have concentrated on a wish for in automobile. Not an ordinary automobile of the second of the and then, one day, there appeared at the door of the orphanise, as if by magic, just the car of their dreams. They rubbed their eyes and pinched themselves, but there if stayed with the sun glinting on its sickled fittings.

A very rich man made possible the fulfillment of the dreams of these org phan children. He bought a Lincola Limousine and presented it to the asylum perhaps in remembrance of the days when he sold pewspapers or the streets of Syracuse and dreamed his
