Hot Weather Comfort

When the sun is hot, and the breezes fail, and one's energy oozes out at every pore, there is only one thing to do—

Touch a button—and instantly a flood of cool, invigorating air is sweeping away the hot, still and oppressive atmosphere of the room and bringing in its train a delightful feeling of coolness and comfort.

The electric fan is indispensable in the summer months; and its extreme cheapness of operation brings it within the reach of everybody.

Come in today, and let us tell you more about it. Why suffer from the heat?

BALDWIN THEATRE PRESENTS VARIED PROGRAM NEXT WEEK

Among the many good features booked for showing at the popular Baldwin theatre next week is "Married Flirts," to be shown on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. This feature has as it's stars Conrad Nagel, Mae Busch and Pauline Fredericks, and has classed as one of the out-standing release this year.

For the final three days of the week the James Cruze production of "The Goose Hangs High," will be shown. This attraction was recently presented by the Bonstelle Players in Detroit and as it is a strong appealing story of the average American home, it is sure to appeal to movie fans in picture from as it has as a dramatic attraction on the spoken stage. An excellent cast of well-known screen actors portray the parts and the production has been directed in a wonderful manner by the Paramount Picture Corporation.

For next Sunday, Mary Carr will be seen in "Not One To Spare," a dramatic tale of the same nature as "Over The Hill," in which picture Miss Carr was seen to great advantage.

Zane Grey's romantic tale "The Code of The West," is holding the silver sheet the last three days of this week and is attracting record crowds at all performances.

With the passing of the regular vaudeville season until next September, the above programs are supplemented with the very best in comedies. News Weeklies, Aesop's Fables, Inkwell Cartoons, etc. The prices have also been reduced for the summer and the above attractions being presented in the best possible manner, with Alfred Wills at the Barton Organ, assures that patrons of the Baldwin theatre excellent entertainment during the summer months.

"LITTLE WOMEN," AT THE BONSTELLE PLAYHOUSE

Miss Bonstelle has finally harkened to the voices of several well-wishers as well as met the requests of letter writers of five years past, and will offer at the Bonstelle Playhouse for at least a fortnight, beginning tomorrow night, a dramatization of Louisa M. Alcott's famous novel, "Little Women."

This book stands forth as one of the great pieces of American literature, copies of which have sold into the millions, and a book which has been translated into more than 25 languages. It was first written in 1868 and 1869 and stands forth as an accurate picture of American life, the author having actual prototypes for the characters set forth in her story.

Of added interest in the forthcoming production is the announcement that Miss Bonstelle has secured the services of Jessie Royce Landis to interpret Jo, commander-in-chief of the little women of the March family.

"Little Women," is familiar to the older generation of theater-goers and the book is equally familiar to many of the present generation, as it is a story of which one never tires—they still sell dolls in the various stories, and as long as they sell dolls "Little Women," will answer the new thought to a large degree. It is Meg, Jo, Beth and Amy, Mr. March and Mrs. March, lifted from the pages with life-like fidelity by Marion de Forest, assisted by Miss Bonstelle and various of the Alcott heirs.

The nineteenth century is not far removed, yet in "Little Women," we find pictures of poignant interest, that seem like a dream today to the adolescent yet one of which they enjoy being reminded. Today it is quite common to have one's hair cut off, but who does not remember Jo's heartbreak when she had her hair cut off in order to provide funds to send her mother to her father, stricken during the Civil War—this is but one of the many intimate pictures that "Little Women," rears before the memory—a play that should prove the biggest thing yet presented by Miss Bonstelle and her associates, and one of a greater appeal than when it was first produced in 1912.

"ABIE'S IRISH ROSE," PLAYING AT GARRICK

"Abie's Irish Rose," will positively play here next week, and the next, and the next and a few more nexts. Because of the big demand for seats, and in order to please the regular patrons of the Garrick, tickets are always on sale for this engagement a week in advance. Mail orders are given prompt attention.

Not in recent years has there been such interest in a local attraction. "Abie" came to Detroit after a record run of 58 weeks in Chicago with the same cast and scenic equipment, and it has received a warm reception. Members of the company have been greeted with open arms everywhere, and many are constantly appearing at the various advertising and commercial clubs.

It is hoped the show can stay through the summer. And there is no reason why Detroit shouldn't be in the same class as Boston, Philadelphia and Chicago when it comes to harboring a play for a period of then or more weeks. "Abie" should pave the way to make this city a "run town."

New York theatrical magnates are watching Detroit, and they are watching "Abie." If the Anne Nichols' comedy tarries until the new season, it is certain that all the big shows will then play from two to four weeks where they formerly only played one.

"Abie" has played long runs in other cities much smaller than Detroit. In Kansas City it stayed 14 weeks, and in Cincinnati 13. In Cleveland it played 28 weeks, 29 in Pittsburgh, 42 in Los Angeles, and the New York company enters its fourth year on May 24. It is truly the miracle play of the American stage.
