WEDNESDAY EVENING, June 10, has been set aside as the date for the junior high school pageant which will close the school year for the eighth grade. The pageant is to be called "America's Child." It is being directed by Misses Denzmore and Ackerly, and with the St. James' church in need of the present building, the possibility of new community center looms into sight.

Many People Help.

According to Mrs. Shain, seven different phases of the work this spring have had a notable part toward the success of the roll call, beginning with Mrs. Raymond Kelly, who provided for the acquainting of all the organizations of the village with the coming project, and ending with the tireless efforts of the sixteen captains and their assistants. The chairman also expressed her appreciation of the workers for the success of the Birthday tea and reception with Mrs. T. B. Smith as general chairman, of the interest of George R. Averill and Mrs. John Marlette in the publication of the Community House Supplement to the Birmingham Eccentric, of the members of the notification committee who secured data on old and new subscribers, of the get-together for the captains and the board prior to the roll call, and finally of the ministers who on the Sunday previous to the opening of the work spoke the project from the Birmingham pulpits. It is estimated that three hundred women were active during the last six weeks toward making the subscription a success.

parade, along with the drums and bugle corps of Troop 1 of the Boy Scouts. An effort is also being made by Leon Mix, general chairman, to secure two companies of the National Guard. The American Legion is in addition providing for the placing of flags along the two main streets of the village for several blocks. The floats to be in the parade are:

Women of the American Legion Auxiliary are very active in helping make the day a success, besides having a float in the parade proper, the members are to sell poppies during the day, the proceeds of which are to be used in decorating the graves of soldiers who are buried in France. The members of the group are also to be disposed of in an effort to reach their budget for the year. All but one business of the village are to be closed during the entire day.

only a full house next Thursday evening, but a completely satisfied audience as well. "The Dressmaker from Paris" is really one of the best comedy-romance films of the year; it is eight reels in length.

The show is a 2-act, 3-act affair, put on under the auspices of the J. L. Hudson Co., by Miss Helen Cornelius. The model for the show will comprise twenty-four Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills women, who will provide about the stage and over a special runway to be built into the auditorium.

Costumes thirteen periods in history will be shown, while many forms of dress that are now in vogue will be displayed, interspersed with each model showing will be some clever lines acted by Miss Cornelius, and singing by Waldo E. Fellows.

E. L. Manson, chairman of the music committee, has arranged for the services of Jean Goldkette's Detroit orchestra. Special numbers, appropriate for the occasion, will be given by the eight pieces, which are brought here at a cost of $150.00.

The arrangement of instrumental music is under the direction of Waldo E. Fellows, who promises several soloists, combinations of duos, trios, etc. Persons acquainted with Mr. Fellows' ability in musical direction that he will furnish splendid talent.

Tickets may be purchased at most of the local stores, or at the Community House.

munity House last year. Necessary upkeep painting and repairs this year will be necessary this spring will necessitate the raising of the budget of last year to near $3,000. In order to become a permanent institution the Girls' Reserve, a newly organized group in the village, will receive $100. With the renewal of the lease on the present property for the maximum, a period of four years, the finance committee will also discuss the possibility of the establishment of a permanent building. With the forming of a building committee sometime this summer, with the community fast outgrowing their present headquarters, and with the St. James' church in need of the present building, the possibility of new community center looms into sight.

ANNUAL EXHIBIT ON IN VILLAGE SCHOOL

in room 212 from the seventh grade junior chorus will conduct the exhibit work will continue until eight o'clock, at which time the exhibit itself will be opened to the visitors.

Six different phases of high school education will be represented in this display: art, domestic science, writing, domestic art, manual training and natural science make up the list. Beginning at 8:15 and lasting ten o'clock, the physical education classes under Miss Krickard and Mr. Van Winkle will present a demonstration, three exercises being given each by the boys and girls.

Boy Scouts will be on duty in the halls of the Baldwin High School building during the evening to see that no unnecessary disturbances are made while classes are being taught. The exhibit is not to open until eight o'clock and is to close at ten thirty promptly, according to Mr. Hart.

Under the direction of the Parent-Teacher Association the grade schools held an open-day yesterday with exhibits and programs given during the afternoon and evening. The Adams unit held their meeting last evening with musical numbers and the presentation of the play "Where but in America" making up the program. Harmon School celebrated with a pot-luck supper at 6:30 and a program in the evening. Clarence Vliet and R. J. Corryell addressed the night and musical numbers gave variety to the meeting. Hill school also held open house yesterday with visitors during the day and an exhibit and program in the evening.

SCHOOL BOARD SEEKS TO SELL BOND ISSUE

is about the building and will have them ready for the final inspection by the first of June. At that time bids will be asked from contractors for the job. It is hoped that, before the first of July the work will be let and the excavation started. It is anticipated that the addition will be ready for occupancy when school opens in the second semester, next January.

Nothing has yet been said about what disposition will be made of the dwelling that is located on the site on Oakland and Adams avenue, purchased by E. J. Davis. It will necessarily be removed and at present it is expected it will be sold at public auction.

It will be necessary to have the entire piece of five lots plowed and graded and put in condition for a playground. It is likely that when the excavation is made for the Adams school, sufficient earth will be taken to the playground to fill the basement and to grade the piece. Before fall the playground may be fenced in, also.

picture as Womanhood of the Ages has passed the Torch of Freedom on all parts of the community. The Department of the Highland Park Woman's Club and the Young Hebrew Association, the Detroit Recreation with the Circle Dramatique and the Royal Oak Woman's Club and the Hutchins Center will form another group. The men and women of Birmingham are furnishing the material for the pageant of 1848 and the Birmingham High School girls and younger children will assist their elders.

The Dramatic Group of the Y. W. C. A. of Highland Park and their Club Girls and members of Kennedy Center will assist. The Jefferson School, the Atkinson House, and a gifted group of Detroit Players will all have their parts. The music which accompanies the Pageant is especially beautiful. A group of musicians from the Symphony Orchestra will render the marches and songs to be sung by the Madrigal Club of Miss Chae. Fredrich is director.

TORRENCE STARS IN FILM "THE DRESSMAKER FROM PARIS" THURSDAY

appearance as "Captain Buzk" in Paramount's notable visualization of J. M. Barrie's farcical comedy.

Now he displays yet another side of his versatility as "Angus McGregor," Scots proprietor of a department store in "The Dressmaker from Paris," directed by Paul Bern, for Paramount.

In this role Torrence is a blustering, hardheaded Scotchman, who disdains the views of Allan Ernest, an introducer for getting business in the small town where the store is located. Torrence is really of Scotch blood and packs a wondrous burr, which of course, the screen cannot convey.

Leatrice Joy has the title role in "The Dressmaker from Paris," which marks her return to the screen after an absence of many months. A particular highlight is the participation in the picture of fourteen mannikins selected after a search which included every city in America and the principal cities of the continent.

The beautiful models exhibit fashions created by one of Paris' foremost designers, brought to this country by Paramount specialists to create gowns for this production.

Miss Joy and Torrence are featured at the best of the best of the picture. In the supporting cast, besides Forrest, are Mildred Harris, Larry Stryker, "Spud" Clifton and Johnnie Adelaide Heilborn, and Howard Hawks wrote the story; the former is treated with the honor.

"THE STORY OF LIFE" DELAYED IN TRANSIT

ried out in the foregoing order, respectively beginning with the day of its arrival.

In February "The Story of Life" was presented by Dr. Enoch Yarrow of Chicago, to the parents of school children in Birmingham. The purpose of repeating the film is to give much needed instruction in social hygiene to school and pre-school children. In brief, the story of life begins with the amoeba living in the dust of the earth, tracing life step by step through the plant kingdom on into the more complex animal organisms. The interesting education of children along hygienic lines has been shown from time to time, the most organized being shown in the three hour courses in the high school taught by Mr. Hart and Mr. Van Winkle. The Y. M. C. A. has also in the past brought speakers to the village.

According to a report given by Mrs. Lee A. White at the monthly meeting of the Association of University Women on Wednesday, there are three distinct means by which the association hopes to be able to overcome the mid-Victorian promulgation toward the instructing of Birmingham children in much needed social hygiene. They are namely, the bringing of speakers from time to time to the village, the giving of advice and information to women, and the showing of "The Story of Life."
