Seen And Heard In Our Schools

By Rosalind Knox

SOAP SCULPTOR
Remarkable indeed is the collection of figures sculpted from soap by Ero Saarinen, a ninth grade pupil in Miss Helen Kiddier's art class, and perhaps the most interesting among them is a Charleston dancer. Ero has caught the spirit of the dance admirably in the animated figure of the boy with a determined expression on his face, his balloon trousers flying, and his sleeves rolled high.

Smaller and more detailed are two wrestlers engaged in combat. The group composition is balanced, harmonious, and lifelike. Other figures are carved from white and give the appearance of ivory. All show careful workmanship and keen observation. Ero is the son of Eino Saarinen, the famous Swedish architect, who is building the new school at Cranbrook.

DOMESTIC SCIENCE
Miss Lucile Hartsuch, domestic science teacher, said this week: "There are only between 15 and 20 high school girls in the domestic science classes, and their comparative unpopularity is due to the fact that but one-quarter of a point is given for each course. As a consequence, the students aren't going to spend their time taking courses that count so little. I teach dietetics, child care, home nursing, and household management. It's rather hard to learn most of these things in a school room. Of course the ideal way to teach household management, for example, is to have a practice cottage where the girls can really keep house for a while."

MAN OF MANY DUTIES
Many and varied are the duties of Louis Randall, business manager of the local schools. In fact, when asked to enumerate them it was impossible for him to remember without due deliberation, all the things that kept him busy. A few of his occupations will serve to show the wide scope of his activities. He is trustee officer; rent collector; he rents the auditorium, gives out stock, and the school plays; he is in charge of the janitors, and he takes the census, a house to house affair, the return of which must be at Lansing by June 1.

JANITORS ARE BUSY
There are three janitors at each school. John Gritzinger is traffic cop on duty at all times when the pupils are going to and coming from school. Frank Cornett opens the building in the morning, puts out the flag, dusts before school opens at 8 o'clock, sweeps after 4 in the afternoon, and cleans the blackboards once a week. Thomas Ashwell, the third janitor, has been with the school since it was built, in fact he started his school career as helper to the mason paving the basement floor. He comes at noon and goes at 11 at night. Asked about his hours, he said: "I sweep the floors, take stock to the various rooms, keep in an orderly line the hungry boys and girls waiting to get into the lunch room—there's as many as 80 to 100 on rainy days—and keep an eye on the users of the school rooms at night. I'm busiest at that time because I'm alone and there's lots of work to do."

"LOST AND FOUND"
Apparently a great many articles are found in and around the high school that are never claimed—if one may judge from the crowded shelves outside of Mr. Vile's office. The belongings of boys and girls seem to be equally represented. Keys, being 12 in number, head the list. Four hair pins take second place, three compasses, three pocketbooks and three pencils strive for third place, two pocket combs and two pairs of gloves (girls') occupy the fourth place of prominence, and in single file follow watch chain on leather strap, fountain pen, paint brush, knife, green brilliant, studded bracelet, silver buckle, cuff pin, and half of a wrist watch clasp.

WASHINGTON TRIP OVER
Tomorrow the Senior Washington group that has striven four years to collect money for the Washington trip will be no more, for the long anticipated week in the capital, begun last Sunday, will be over and only a memory. Those who accompanied the boys and girls were W. S. Toothacker and Miss Mabel Strick, chaperones; Miss Frances Speaker, Miss Geraldine Henry, Miss Helen Dutton, Miss Olga Westendorfer, Mr. Florence Akerly, Miss McClelland, Miss Wade, Mrs. F. S. Ross, and Mrs. R. J. Carroll.

Two Local Scouts To Receive High Honor

It has been announced from local Scout headquarters that Birmingham is sure of having two scouts in the group to personally receive Eagle Scout badges from Sir Baden-Powell, the founder of the Scout organization, who is visiting America and looking over the progress made by the Scout organization since its founding in this country fifteen years ago. The two boys are Ivan Ball, of troop B1, and Byron Winborn, of troop B1.

There is also a possibility of two other boys getting Eagle badges, but their names are withheld until a later date. Sir Baden-Powell is an Englishman who served as a general in the Boer War and who observed the use of scouts by the fighters of India in their military organization. Upon coming back to England after the war he founded what is now known as the Boy Scouts. The organization has grown far beyond the original plans of the founder and is universal in scope. It affords the youth an opportunity to concentrate his efforts in club organization in the way of character building pursuits.

The local Scout headquarters also announces that Mr. Morrow of the American Red Cross will speak before a group of Scout officials upon the subject of First Aid. The address will be given in Dr. Fred L. Tucker's office tonight.

CONFERRED DEGREE
The officers of the Tribe of Oakland Rebekah Lodge conferred the degree on ten candidates of Maple Rebekah Lodge at Haley last Thursday evening.

Just To Make You Smile The While

Clap Hands, Here Comes Charlie
The crowd cheered wildly as the team trotted on the field. Eleven determined men going forth to fight for the old school. Mr. Juggler had for a while been Charlie. All the boys knew Charlie. On the campus his genial personality had won him many, many friends. He smiled. There was confidence as well as determination in his smile. He seemed the peg the fellows had so often seen. With an assuring tone in his voice he barked out: "Peasuts, popcorn, candy!"—Notre Dame Juggler.

"Did you notice the conductor looking at you as if you hadn't paid your fare?"

"Sure, and did you notice me looking at him as if I had?"—Notre Dame Juggler.

"You say you are perfectly normal."

"Yes."

"Do you light your cigarette with your right hand?"

"Yes."

"That's not normal, most people use a match."—W. Va. Moonshine.

"How big is your home town, Al?"

"Oh, about the size of New York; but it isn't built up yet."
