DOEMS I LOVE
BY CHARLES HANSON TOWNE

"Requiescat," by Matthew Arnold. The last stanza of this exquisite elegiac poem seems to me the last word in beauty; and it has been an anodyne for many in the throes of unutterable grief. But he may prove difficult to the student at first. Once his enchanted powers are entered, however, his wonder will be obvious. His imagination roamed wherever he chose to allow it. "Morality," "The Scholar Gipsy," and the brifer poem below are worth studying and pondering.

Srew on her roses, roses,
And never a spray of yew!
In quiet she reposes;
Ah! would that I did too.

Her mirth the world required;
She bathed it in smiles of gloe;
But her heart was tired, tired,
And now they let her be.

Her life was turning, turning,
In mazes of heat and sound;
But for peace her soul was yearning,
And now peace laps her round.

Her cabin'd, ample spirit,
It fluttered and failed for
Tonight it doth inherit
The vastly halls of death.
