U. OF M. EXPEDITION TAKES "CHEVIE" TRUCK

Collection and classification of new species of fish heretofore unknown to the scientific world is the aim of a motorized expedition now en route to northwest and Pacific coast regions, headed by Professor Carl L. Hobbs, Curator of Fishes of the University of Michigan zoological museum.

A specially designed Chevrolet truck, donated to the University by the General Motors Corporation, is being used by Professor Hobbs for transporting equipment and members of his party from Ann Arbor to various points on the coast and inland cities where investigations will be made. The truck will be rendered by Chevrolet service stations during the trip, which will take five months from June 1 to October 1.

Automobile tourists frequenting Michigan and other central states will especially benefit by the program of Prof. Hobbs which calls for the introduction of fresh water game fish from Washington and Oregon streams. Motorists find fishing one of their chief diversions, and in order to keep pace with their demands, new species must be introduced. State fish commissions throughout the country will follow Prof. Hobbs' experiments in restocking of streams, as inducements for the motor tourists to visit their localities.

Other regions where specimens will be collected are Wisconsin, Lake Superior, Minnesota, North Dakota and California streams.

Specimens collected will be preserved in the compact truck laboratory for future study by students in zoological departments.

Prof. Hobbs is a well-known figure in the scientific world for his original work in investigating fish life in the St. Lawrence and St. Marys rivers, Michigan, and in the Department of Conservation and in several of the Pacific coast and northwestern states.

Two hundred different kinds of fishes are now known to science as dwellers in the shore waters of Washington and Oregon, according to Prof. Hobbs, and many others there have never been classified. Use of the Chevrolet truck will allow a wide territory to be covered at a minimum of expense, Prof. Hobbs says.
