ECCENTRICITIES

Being a few stray notions by G. B. A. Sometimes they are sane notions (when they meet popular approval); then, again, they are quite insane (when they don't). However, this column will attempt to build constructively—destroying only foundations that we think are socially flimsy.

Here we are—another week has wheeled along and all outdoors (at this writing on Monday) is crying for the companionship of earth beings. While mankind has been engaged in keeping his house warm during the winter, a bountiful nature has continued its uninterrupted business of continuing life in flower, plant and tree. Soon the grass will disclose its relationship to the Irish and our people will sally forth to seek the cool places.

Birmingham has always had, at this time o' year, plenty of water on its streets; as a matter of fact, if we would follow the example of Mt. Clemens, we could accommodate the world with mud bathing. Hardly a road in the village that does not contain at least one lovely mud hole (for mud holes can be lovely, you know—providing they are muddy enough) to engage the skill of motorists and tire manufacturers. Of course, the only way to remedy this condition is to provide proper drainage for our streets, and hard surfaces, if possible. Do you want your street fixed up? Then petition for improvements to the village commission; and be prepared to pay for them on a special assessment basis.

Now that the Birmingham Rotary club has offered a prize for the most suitable title for its annual benefit show for crippled children, we wonder who'll be the winner? For further particulars we refer contestants to Dr. George P. Raynale, E. L. Manson, or Joseph Stroup.

Within the past few weeks The Eccentric has published articles from Clarence Vliet and Ralph I. Coryell about their respective trips to Washington, D. C. We hope our readers enjoyed them; we take this means of publicly thanking Mr. Vliet and Mr. Coryell for letting "the folks back home" know about their trips. The Eccentric welcomes similar articles of travel by other readers at any time.

We hope that you'll like our 1926 Directory of Birmingham and Bloomfield township, which we are now engaged in getting material for. We shall make an honest effort to secure the name, occupation, and address of every person over 18 years of age. And don't forget that you will receive a free copy when it is ready for distribution, for we want to place one in every home in Bloomfield township.

It is a fine thing for Birmingham that it has within it organizations which are attempting to teach people how to appreciate and render music. The world would, indeed, be a sad place if there wasn't much music expressed to bring comfort and joy to society. Happy is the man or woman, boy or girl, whose heart resounds with music; whose work is at least partly filled with a kind of harmony that is rythmical and melodious. Music and musical appreciation are as necessary to happiness as sunshine and pure air. The harmonious vibrations of voice, reed, or string points out most eloquently to society how it, too, could render a unified anthem of Christianity, if it but accepted literally the manuscript of Jesus Christ.

We wonder if the churches today are not placing too much emphasis upon the necessity of mass acceptance of the teachings of Jesus, when it really means to point out the laxity of the average home in family worship. Dr. William M. Holderby, a remarkable speaker who was in Birmingham Sunday and Monday of this week, claims that family worship is almost forgotten in America, and upon this statement he declares that the safety of America is menaced. We believe that Dr. Holderby is correct in much of his premise relative to the decadence of family worship in the home, but the picture he paints of dissolution and decay is somewhat exaggerated. Religion's success isn't so much in large church attendances as it is in the manner in which the average home is conducted—all of which points out that, after all, religion and its acceptance is something of an individual problem. The man who accepts religion is, we believe, infinitely better off than the man who doesn't, but that is the individual's concern. Legislation won't make Christians.
