

Views of Two of Oakland County's Numerous Beauty Spots

Orchard Lake

"Ray Cole's Retreat"

Of the many beauty spots in Oakland County, two of the best known are pictured here. Tranquil water touched softly by light breezes that play among the trees surrounding the lakes make them particularly enticing as retreats from the heat of the city during the summer time.

The summer months. Orchard Lake is usually dotted with white sail boats. The sport is always attractive to many at this place while picknickers daily line the shores and enjoy the cooling breezes. The pictures shown above are in almost direct contrast to the places as they appear today after autumn has swept the trees bare. Iceboating is planned for Orchard Lake this winter and many say the skating possibilities are excellent.

Acting Is Much Like Tennis, Declares William Tilden, 2nd

Learning to play tennis is similar of "They All Want Something," in many ways to the business of which the tennis star is now being learning to act, in the opinion of featured in New York, Mr. Tilden William T. Tilden 2d, who is by way last week recalled with a grin the of knowing something about both early days of his court career when, lines of endeavor. Between the acts as an embryonic champion he played in tournaments at the historic old Mannheim Cricket club in Philadelphia. "In those days," he said, "I had lots of speed and ambition but very little control. When I'd hit the ball it would be just as liable to go into the net or three feet over the backstop as into my opponent's court. My game was wild but full of hope. Finally, I realized that unless I learned the small and seemingly tedious technical details of stroking, all my speed, strength and ambition would go for nothing. Little by little I acquired this knowledge till at length I could command my shots and place them at will, and when I drove them with everything I had in me they went fast and clean to my opponent's base lines or bounced at his feet or on his backhand or wherever I wished them to. "In acting it is very much the same story. You bring to the task plenty of enthusiasm and speed and ambition. You think it is easy because, as done by others who are expert at the job, it seems quite simple. But you are apt pretty soon to find yourself self playing all around the court instead of in it. Your 'stroking' is bad. Your 'shots' are all 'netted' and your services are all 'faults.' Then comes the time for self-analysis and the assimilation of much technical knowledge. Your enthusiasm must be put under control. Your speed must be harnessed. Each of your 'shots' must be made to 'register.' "There is one thing possessed by the tennis world which the stage lacks," Mr. Tilden added, "and that is a yearly tournament to determine who is the best performer. "We have a Pulitzer Prize committee to rule on the best play of the year," he explained, "but we have no machinery or system by which we can determine the 'best actor' of the year. Why is this so? Surely it would not be difficult for some committee or body to view the efforts of our actors and actresses during the course of each theatrical season and, at the end of the season, to see to it that the most efficient and capable performer or performers were awarded due recognition. This might serve as an added impetus to stimulate interest in the art of acting."

Rotarian's Code Of Ethics

My business standards shall have in them a note sympathy for our common humanity. My business dealings, ambitions and relations shall cause me to take into consideration my highest duties as a member of society. In every position in business life in every responsibility that comes before me, my chief thought shall be to fill that responsibility and discharge that duty so when I have ended each of them I shall have lifted the level of human ideals and achievements a little higher than I found it. As a Rotarian it is my duty: FIRST—To consider my vocation worthy, and as affording me distinct opportunity to serve society. SECOND—To improve myself, increase my efficiency and enlarge my service, and by so doing attest my faith in the fundamental principle of Rotary that he profits most who serves best. THIRD—To realize that I am a business man ambitious to succeed; but that I am first an ethical man, and wish no success that is not founded on the highest justice and morality. FOURTH—To hold that the exchange of my goods, my service and my ideas for profit is legitimate and ethical, provided that all parties in the exchange are benefited thereby. FIFTH—To use my best endeavors to elevate the standards of the vocation in which I am engaged, and so to conduct my affairs that others in my vocation may find it wise, profitable and conducive to happiness to emulate my example. SIXTH—To conduct my business in such a manner that I may give a perfect service equal to even the best that my competitor, and when in doubt to give added service beyond the strict measure of debt or obligation. SEVENTH—To understand that one of the greatest assets of a professional or of a business man in his friends, and that any advantage gained by reason of friendship is eminently ethical and proper. EIGHTH—To hold that true friends demand nothing of one another, and that any abuse of the confidences of friendship for profit is foreign to the spirit of Rotary, and in violation of its Code of Ethics. NINTH—To consider no personal success legitimate or ethical which is secured by taking unfair advantage of certain opportunities in the social order that are absolutely denied others, nor will I take advantage of opportunities to achieve material success that others will not take because of the questionable morality involved. TENTH—To be not more obligated to a brother Rotarian than I am to every other man in human society; because the genius of Rotary is not in its competition but in its co-operation; for provincialism can never have a place in an institution like Rotary, and Rotarians assert that human rights are not confined to Rotary Clubs, but are as deep and as broad as the race itself; and for these

Five weeks to Christmas - and time is flying

THAT one is wise who sees about the buying of his Christmas presents in good season—and it's none too soon today.

The early buyer is able to choose from a full and fresh stock; he buys more leisurely and with better judgment; and he avoids the surging crowds of late buyers.

In considering the kind of gifts you will make, don't overlook the fact that an electric household appliance—coffee percolator, toaster, waffle iron or whatnot—never fails of a welcome or ceases to keep the giver in memory.

Electric dining-table appliances are not only of great convenience in housekeeping, but are beautiful as well. They adorn the table.

We should like you to call at our office and allow us to show you how gracefully you can discharge one of more of your Christmas obligations.
