Thanksgiving Baskets Will Be Distributed

A spirit of friendliness and good will will pervade Birmingham this Thanksgiving. Many gifts have been brought to the Community House by friends who wish to share with others at this season, and who trust implicitly in the wise distribution of these gifts by Miss Mary Griffith, hostess at the Community House.

Several families are being helped temporarily over their difficulties. There has arisen through family illness or lack of work.

Strictly complimentary dinner baskets will be delivered. One of these has been contributed by the Girl Reserve of the Community House, a high school age, under the direction of Miss Emily Walker and Mrs. George Moore.

Three dainty baskets of figs, dates, fruits, and jellies, accompanied by a letter, will be personally delivered to elderly shut-ins by the Bluebirds, little girls from the direction of Mrs. Raymond Reilly.

Through the thoughtful planning of Mrs. A. E. Robinson, head of the primary department of the Presbyterian church, the children of this department are preparing gifts of fruit, vegetables and fruits. These will be distributed to various houses, as well as to the Community House and the Sunday School of Christ Church, Cranbrook.

CLASSIC EXPLORED IN ROYAL OAK GAMES AT VILLAGE

The season covered while the Acorns tip the scales at 149.

The Maroon and White forward guard has put in a very creditable season, though at times it has been no better than others. Such a record as the team made in this season is a line of merit. With its help only, were the Acorns able to total the large scores in the last game. High and Cass Tech, both of Detroit, and George F. Johnson, coach of the local team, expresses in the following message to Royal Oak, the friendly rivalry, the true sportsmanship and the spirit in which the two teams compete:

"The Thanksgiving game between Royal Oak and Birmingham is more than a game. It is more than a contest between two picked teams of clever men each. It is a struggle between two whole communities, whose friendly rivalry has grown steadily from the time when, as two small towns, they were represented by uncoached and poorly equipped teams and a handful of spectators to the present time when in this annual game is the season's goal for both teams."

"Clean And Friendly"

"In spite of the keenness of the rivalry it has always been clean and backed by a friendly spirit. In fact, it seems to me that the relationship between these two schools is becoming more friendly as the years go by. These two communities are natural rivals. Their location has made them so. Both have experienced a rapid growth during the last few years, which has increased the size of the school and the calibre of the student body. Each school calls for a larger crowd of spectators."

"This year is to be no exception. Birmingham is planning to handle a large crowd. Winning this game will seem to me that the relationship between these two schools is becoming more friendly as the years go by. These two communities are natural rivals. Their location has made them so. Both have experienced a rapid growth during the last few years, which has increased the size of the school and the calibre of the student body. Each school calls for a larger crowd of spectators."

"Birmingham is ready to welcome Royal Oak to Thanksgiving in the spirit of true friendship. May our rivalry always be marked by good sportsmanship. We are looking forward to a great game, and may the better team win."

"Russell Kenaga, the Acorn football mentor, also expresses the meaning of the much felt contest in the following, received by Mr. Johnson:

"Football games between Royal Oak and Birmingham are more eagerly written by deeds and action than by words. Always Royal Oak looks for a real battle on Thanksgiving Day, and our season to that point has been poor, a victory means it was eventually successful. During my reign as coach, I can say that I have seen nothing but good clean sportsmanship between the players of both schools; a conduct worthy of the emulation of the school's followers. May we see this year as always, keen, friendly and worthy rivalry, and may the best team win."
