THREE INJURED WHEN AUTOMOBILES CRASH

Driver Arrested On Driving Drunk Charge Following Lincoln Avenue Accident.

C. J. LaLonde, 19 Carter street, faces a charge of driving while drunk following an accident early Friday in which Walter Osier, same address, riding with him received serious injuries to his head and shoulder when their machine crashed into a car driven by George Scallon, 2629 Columbia street, Berkley, at South Woodward and Lincoln avenues.

According to police, LaLonde was traveling at a high rate of speed when the cars crashed. Patrolman George Townsend, who arrested him, declares he was under the influence of liquor.

Scallon and LaLonde were treated for their injuries by a physician at police headquarters and Osier was taken to the Pontiac City Hospital.

A modern hydro-electric station is planned to be installed in the River Jordan, in Palestine.

GASMANIA—?

A very contagious and almost incurable disease of the accelerator.

Instant death of the sufferer afflicted with this dangerous disease is the surest and quickest cure.

Ten weeks in the hospital at the point of death has been known to give temporary relief in a few mild cases.

Ninety days in the "cooler" sometimes acts as a pretty good anti-toxin for too much ambition in the right foot.

"Doctor" Bartlett seems to have the most accurate "technique" for treating this mania of any "specialist" in Detroit.

A trip to his "clinic" is a severe shock to the nervous system, but it seems to help put "patience" in the patient.

But just the same, "Good Morning, Job," beats "Good Morning, Judge," and ninety days on the job goes by a whole lot faster than ninety days in the "JUG."

Thus saith Experience.

After a dispute among Welsh linguists in Cardiff it has been decided that the right name for the skunk is "gwyddel-y-gwellt" and not "cathgoed."

RANDOM DOINGS

William Heggie, who was buried by an earthslide at Methyl, Eng., was dug out alive 36 hours later and called for a half-dozen boiled eggs.

Thomas Halkett of Chicago, after being summoned for desertion, agreed to return home if his mother-in-law would leave, which the court ordered her to do.

Thomas Williams of Ystrad, Wales, must pay Miss Beatrice Ward $2.50 a week for the rest of her life because he jilted her.

C. C. Conger, Jr., of Penn Laird, Pa., claims a championship for having killed more than 1,200 chicken hawks.

Samuel Ellis of Marsden, Eng., was arrested for deserting his wife 11 years ago, when he turned up to claim a bequest in his mother's will.

James Briscom of Glasgow appealed to the police because his wife allowed him only 12 cents a week out of his wages.

Elsie Deacon, aged 18, of Nuneaton, Eng., who with several youths was summoned for disturbing people by giggling before their homes after midnight, had to pay the court costs.

The Earl of Balfour, now 76, has held eight British cabinet offices, besides representing his country in many international conferences.

A coat button lost by a burglar in the home of Arthur Chappell of Chicago resulted in the arrest of F. C. Clawson, who had a button missing from his coat.

Pallbearers employed by a local undertaker in Bedford, Eng., struck for increased wages and held up three funerals until their demand was granted.

Henri Mathey of Sion, Switzerland, fell from his motorcycle and choked to death on his false teeth.

While Mlle. Hortense Dufaisne of Lille, France, was waiting at the altar to be married, she received word that the bridegroom had committed suicide.

Henry Wright of Cardiff was given a decree in his divorce suit when it was revealed that he and his wife had not spoken for eight years.

Walter Haydon of London was arrested for cruelty to fish because he cleaned them before their heads were cut off.

Eleven-year-old Ruth Kessler of Winnetka, Ill., was arrested for driving an automobile, but was released when her father promised to keep her away from the wheel.

Mlle. Marie Leniere of Paris swallowed a wrist watch she had stolen when a warrant of arrest was served on her.
