Folksgs Items

P. G. COX, Itemizer

The political campaign opened in Folksgs last week, and in accordance with their usual custom, Ed Howard and Jeff Patton have stopped speaking to one another until after the election.

Some of our citizens in the Bellview addition have been complaining a good deal about alleged holes in the street out there. The matter was brought before the Town Board at its last session, and after due consideration, Marshall Bailey was instructed to proceed to the point mentioned and then use his best judgment as to what to do. It's hoped that his judgment will be adequate to fill the hole.

Chester Stevens, who went to the city a year or two ago to take a high paying job, was in town for a few days last week. He spent the time among his old friends, telling how well he has been doing since he got out among the bigger opportunities, which everybody was glad didn't in any way cover the labor involved in getting him up of a mortgage in time to go to work.

Emmett Tucker's wife is considerably put out on account of it looks like they'll have to go through another winter with the same big leak in their wood shed roof. Emmett has had good intentions about it, but at summer the weather has been too hot, and he figures now it's a little late in the season to undertake it.

Miss Melle Robbins has received the new rain coat which she ordered from a catalog, and she's now watching the weather close for a reasonable excuse to wear it.

The south-bound train jumped the track again last Monday at Horse-shoe Curve. Sandy Atkins, who happened to be out there, ran himself almost out of breath to get to town and be the first to tell it. But he was disappointed to find that someone else had done it and had beat him in with the news.

Enoch Budd has cut a new window in the northeast corner of his house. It's right opposite the street light. Enoch thinks by having a window there he won't have to burn his light much of the time.

Lewis Jackson gets right discouraged sometimes on his job at the basket factory. He thinks he was cut out for something better and talks a good deal about the promising opportunities he let get away from him in his younger days. But Uncle Bill Bobbitt always tells him a man can't judge such matters, and may be some of those other things would have led him into water over his head.

Bob Hall has had to give up his work at the flour mill. His family decided that the wages he made didn't in any way cover the labor involved in getting him up of a mortgage in time to go to work.

Jason Crab was seriously annoyed the other night by dogs barking on the lot next to him. When he couldn't stand it any longer he got up and rushed out to throw some rocks, and in the confusion he hit and broke out the big window in his garage. After which he wasn't able to sleep much the rest of the night.

Chester Street Grading Begins

Taylor Construction Co., a local concern now paving five streets here, was awarded the contract for the paving of Chester Street in front of the Baldwin school at the same unit prices as the other paving work. Grading is well under way today. As the school board wished this work to be completed as quickly as possible it was thought best not to delay advertising for bids. The bid of the Taylor Company on other work was also considered lower than could be secured for the small piece of work on Chester street. The cost of the pavement will be approximately $2,000.

'CHATEAU' BIRMINGHAM'S NEW TEA ROOM, OPENS

Birmingham's new tea room, the "Chateau," opens to the public Saturday. With tables for 100 guests arranged in three rooms and his own private cook installed in the kitchen, H. Wales Price, the proprietor, has started a place that will, he believes, fill a long felt need in Birmingham. One of the rooms will be especially for men, with aeroplane trophies for decorations. The tea room will be available for lunches, teas, and dinners.

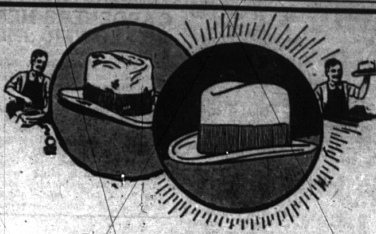

Mr. Price has had considerable experience in tea room work. He is the owner of Price's Coffee Shop, Detroit, on Washington boulevard, north of the Book-Cadillac hotel.

Baltimore, a yearling colt recently bought by Count de Rivaud of France, brought the record price of 600,000 francs, the former highest price for a yearling being 450,000 francs.

Pawling believes the fire was caused by a bad electrical connection. The Birmingham Fire Department extinguished the fire with chemicals.
