FRED W. GREEN WOULD RETURN GOVERNMENT TO PEOPLE OF STATE

Republican Candidate For Governor Of Michigan Outlines His Platform.

WILL SPEAK IN COUNTY

Fred W. Green, mayor of Ionia, Michigan, and Republican candidate at the September 14 primary election opposing Alex J. Groesbeck for the Governorship, will soon begin a series of speeches in Oakland County. He is scheduled to appear in Pontiac next week, and will probably visit other communities before election day.

In practically every place where he has spoken this summer Mr. Green has met with a hearty and spontaneous welcome by citizens who are hailing him as the "Moses to lead Michigan out of the wilderness of autocratic government," and into the land of enlightened, representative administration of the people's affairs at Lansing.

Outlines Program.

Mr. Green declares that if elected he will insist on the return of his constitutional prerogatives to the auditor general and the placing of the State accounting system beyond the power of succeeding administrations to manipulate for their own reasons.

"I shall insist that moneys appropriated for specific purposes shall be used for those purposes alone," he said.

"It will be my desire to perform the constitutional duties of the governorship. I shall not use the administrative board for my purpose. I shall not seek to deprive the legislature of its responsibility for legislation.

"It shall be my desire to appoint to State Boards the best qualified men I can find and I will leave to the members of the boards the performance of the duties they are sworn to handle.

"I stand relentlessly opposed to letting loose upon society the professional criminal. I will use the parole power to minimize the crime problem, not to augment it. I shall insist that hearings upon paroles be public. I should consider it a shameful thing if during an administration of which I was the head the report could generally be circulated that an appeal to any particular law firm could effect the parole or pardon of any criminal.

Favors One Term.

"I stand for an earnest conservation program.

"In my appointments I shall strive to obtain the help which comes from viewpoints drawn from all walks of life. I believe the State would benefit largely from the participation of women in the active affairs of government.

"I shall insist that no person on the public payroll shall engage in active politics either in my behalf or of anyone else.

"I stand for unrelenting enforcement of the present labor laws and for a revision of the workmen's compensation law to accord with the changed standards of living and the changed industrial conditions.

"I am an advocate of a single four year term for Governor. I believe the chief executive should have time to work out his program of administration and I believe he should not be able to use the vast power of his office to perpetuate him in that office."

GASOLINE GRANGE HITS THE VILLAGE

At last, a solution!

This was exclaimed Tuesday by many Birmingham persons on the downtown streets who saw with what ease the driver of a large car carried home an unusually burdensome cake of ice.

Everyone at one time or another having found the ice box like Mrs. Hubbard's cupboard, and been forced to press into service little Cecil's express wagon in preference to putting the ice on the upholstery of the new car should be interested in Gasoline Grange's contrivance.

Especially so since sometimes there is no little Cecil about the house and sometimes little Cecil is the kind who has been known to protest when his express wagon is used to haul ice.

The whole thing was so simple that anyone could have thought of it if he tried. The Ice Editor of The Birmingham Eccentric would have offered it for his reader's approval long ago had he thought anyone cared about it.

Anyway, here is what this person with the unusual genius did. He merely tilted a ponderous cake of ice onto the rear bumper of the car and went home thoroughly iced and sans care.
