

THE SPIRIT OF NEIGHBORLINESS

Youth takes the Center in the Story of NEIGHBORLINESS

YOUTH is warned to fulfil his obligations to fellowmen, to play the game square, to love his neighbor.

In his play he is taught to give and take fairly. He is impressed with the idea of developing manly character.

And in the last analysis, all of his instructions are purported to develop dependable leadership.

Dependable leadership must have a field to work over. This is where community idealism and neighborliness find employment.

If neighborliness is absent in the genius' mind

—if society holds no feeling in his work—then his work will grind out a selfish sustenance and the genius is lost.

And we in Birmingham must think of the lack of community co-operation which an adjacent dynamic center must create in the youth's life.

Independence of community responsibilities must not steal the intrinsic values from our youth. We should inculcate neighborliness in his daily play or work.

And this is our message to you—Get back to home town thinking—make neighborliness one of your big commandments.
