Wernke was on his way to see his sweetheart in Flint when he crashed into the truck, his father, Earl W. Wernke, told police. Chief William Putman of Bloomfield Hills was told by witnesses that Wernke was not driving at a high rate of speed when he drove his car into the rear of the truck, which was traveling north.

Injuries to his head and internal injuries were the cause of his death, according to hospital attendants. The gardener crashed through the windshield and pinned Wernke to the back of the automobile seat. Difficulty was encountered by his rescuers in extracting the body.

According to Chief Putman, Baldwin, the man who was bumping into the truck, had parked his car in a field off the long line road and lived in a tent alone. Police were called to the scene and at first thought he had been burned to death. A search later revealed that he had sought shelter in a nearby barn.

Village Continues in Seventh Class After Inspection; Recommendations Made

Birmingham continues today with a seventh class fire rating following a report submitted to Manager James W. Parry by the inspection bureau of the state, following the October inspection. Mr. Parry said it is unlikely that this rating will be changed in the near future because of the number of requirements necessary for an improved classification.

When an indication of motion is to be found in the writing we find a certain ease in a man's hand. The lower part of the capital I will have a long base resembling a hook which means that the man will bring his foot along with him so that he can travel.

When letters are well rounded, you may deduce that they could not have been made in a hurry. This type of writer is content to go easy and not very far. Therefore, the opposite to this, a writing that flows on to such a degree that the letters are misshapen, indicates a person who is constantly on the go—at least unconsciously.

Writing made up of letters of various sizes shows a nervous energy and when this is manifest we have the restless writer who is always on the go.

A Meal on the Farm THE average farm wife, when entertaining a city friend, will invariably serve city food if she can manage it and if not, he so full an apology for serving that which is so common to her.

A good sized cabbage, a turnip or two, a few carrots and onions, and a few potatoes with a slice of corned beef, all cooked together until the vegetables are tender, makes a dish fit to set before the dearest friend. It is best to put the corned beef in a simmering water an hour or more before the vegetables are added. Onions and beans are cooked in separate saucers, and served all together on the platter.

With fresh eggs, an omelet, a custard pie or sponge cake is a meal which can be quickly prepared which is highly appetizing.

CHILDREN AND TRAFFIC

More than 150 Philadelphia mothers who have lost children in traffic accidents have organized a "mothers' safety council" to cooperate with the Citizens' Safety Committee of the Chamber of Commerce in appealing to other mothers to teach their children to be careful when in the streets.

The organization also has for its object the reduction of traffic casualties by education of the drivers of motor vehicles. The American Road Builders' Association has issued a statement calling attention to the fact that more than 50,000 children under 15 years of age are killed on the streets and highways of the country every year, in addition to which approximately 175,000 children are seriously injured. More than 28 per cent of all traffic fatalities last year destroyed children, most of whom were between the ages of 6 and 10.

Philadelphia's Mothers' Safety Council should be the first to appeal to the other city authorities that no other group could hope to make.
