WOMAN'S LITERARY CLUB HEARS SPEAKER, CONDUCTS BUSINESS

Health and hygiene were the subjects presented on the program of the Women's Literary club Tuesday afternoon when, at their regular meeting in the Community House, Mrs. Glenn Schaeck, of the Detroit Creamery company, addressed the club. The program was arranged by Mrs. Harve Rocco was chairman for the day.

Every physician today, no matter what his school of medicine, should be an eclectic, taking from each method the things he finds in his practice to be beneficial. Unless a doctor has an evangelical attitude and his work, getting his greatest joy and satisfaction out of the results he may secure in preventing disease, he is missing the ecstasy that every man should have in the doing of his "good work," he said.

Reports were given by Mrs. Fred Klose on the work of the Sunshine committee in providing for two families at Christmas time, and Mrs. Clarence Gail on public welfare. Mrs. Ross asked club members to meet her on the Thursday afternoon before Christmas at the Community House to help assemble the gifts which are to go out to needy families.

Mrs. Gail proposed a resolution approving the establishment of a dance hall in Birmingham and it was unanimously carried. Mrs. Charles Shain on the heading of public welfare reported on the activities of the Community House, particularly its services in caring for the unfortunate families of Birmingham without expense to taxpayers, and informed the club as to the progress of the plans for the new building. A contribution was made to the Near East Relief and to the Chicago Women's Shelter. Mrs. Barr announced the opening of the new library Dec. 17.

Mrs. James W. Parry was elected chairman of the literary department following the resignation of Mrs. Glenn Schaeck from that post by Miss Sarah Sty and Mrs. Gertrude Cunningham were elected to membership.

Mrs. James Cobb gave the critic's report for the month. A chorus from the Adams school under the direction of Miss Vera Hediges sang.

The next meeting of the club will be on Jan. 10 and will be in charge of the literary department. At the invitation of Mrs. Barr, president of the literary board, the meeting will be held in the auditorium of the library.

CHURCH GROUP GIVES PAGEANT

A Christmas pageant, entitled "The Way," will be given by the young people of the First Presbyterian Church on Christmas night in the church. The pageant was written by Miss Ethel Geener, well known instructor in pageantry and religious drama at the Northfield Conference of Religious Education at Northfield, Mass.

The musical program, which accompanies the pageant, is being directed by Bert Beer, musical director of the church. Hymns, carols, and oratorios will be sung, and organ themes will be played throughout the presentation.

R. T. Stanton, of Chicago and New York, is the guest of his son and daughter-in-law Mr. and Mrs. David Stanton, of Michigan road, until after the holidays.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Conine, of Ravine road will entertain 22 guests at dinner Saturday preceding the Village Players dance.
