TWO MEN FINED AFTER FIGHT

Free-For-All On Streets Is Averted By Arrival Of Police

Two men have paid fines today following what threatened to be a free-for-all fight at Woodward and Maple-avenue last Thursday when a deputy sheriff and two Detroit men exchanged blows after their autos had collided. Birmingham police intervened as spectators were about to take a hand.

Edward Henry, 24 years old, paid a fine of $35 on a charge of assault and battery and Harry Harris was fined $20 for fighting Floyd S. Beck. The men are brothers and live at 2325 Hubbell-avenue, Detroit.

The machine in which the brothers were riding crashed into the rear of a car driven by Deputy Marie Elliot of Royal Oak when the latter stopped suddenly at the street intersection. Words were exchanged and Elliot testified the brothers then pulled open the door of his automobile and struck him before he had a chance to get out of his auto.

The arrests were made by Serg. Richard Lawler and Patrolman William Green.

Judson Bradway Celebrates 25th Real Estate Year

Just 25 years ago this month, Judson Bradway, pioneer developer of suburban properties in Bloomfield Hills, began his real estate career that later was to rank him high among nationally known realtors. On Dec. 8, 1902, Judson Bradway, then living on his father's farm near Birmingham, caught the early car that was to bring him at 8:30 a. m. to the Detroit office where he was to begin his first day's work in real estate. It means there has been no sector of greater development in the annals of an American city than that of the north Woodward suburban districts of Detroit, Mr. Bradway stated. He has witnessed a very great change since the time of the corduroy road that connected Birmingham with Detroit. His early

Has Face Lifted

The Old Man of the Mountains has just had his face lifted. And New England rejoices. The "Old Man" has graced, for untold centuries, the famed Franconia notch in the White mountains. The "lifting" consisted of removing several rocks that marred the "Old Man's" features, and restoring a part of his forehead.

belief in the desirability of country and suburban life has been more than justified by the great numbers of new residents each year in these beautiful districts, he declared.

Employees and associates in the Judson Bradway company remind Mr. Bradway of his anniversary by presenting him a mahogany mantle clock and a beautiful lunch of 25 rosebushes here symbolizing a year of his business life.

ASK ASSESSMENT IN CONSTRUCTION

No Objections Raised to Tax On Improvement For Latham Boulevard

No objections having been heard to the construction of a concrete curb and gutter on Latham boulevard between Lincoln avenue and Sixth street, the village assessor has instructed from the commission today to tax the property owners who will be benefited.

The improvement will cost approximately $6,000. Of this the property owners will pay five-sixths and the village at large will pay the other sixth.

Work is to be started in the spring, it is expected.

BISHOP HERMAN PAGE TO CONDUCT SERVICE

Bishop Herman Page, of the Michigan Diocese, of the Episcopal Church, will conduct the morning services at Christ Church, Bloomfield Hills, New Year's Day, according to announcement made. At this service to be held at 11 a. m., the Rite of Confirmation will be administered. The service will be held in the main auditorium, but all other services will be conducted in Guild Hall until the furnishings of the Church have been installed.

Ralph Carrigan of St. Louis told a judge that he was fond of his mother-in-law because she supported him.

We Are Pleased

because

1927 was a great year for the Birmingham and Bloomfield Hills district.

because

more fine homes were erected than ever before.

because

there were more high grade private homes erected in the different developments of Walsh, James & Wasey Co. than in all others combined.

because

We believe the public has confidence in Walsh, James & Wasey Co. locations, improvements, values and building and use restrictions, assuring permanently fine residential neighborhoods.

We wish you all a Prosperous New Year
