Some people have so little to say that it requires all their time to say it. A sign-post on the road may mean anything from a detour or a formula for eliminating cockroaches. Never say die; dead is an easier word, and oftennef fits the case. Now we will start a new paragraph.

RAIN OR SUNSHINE

Oh, what a dark and dismal day.
The whole earth wears a frown,
No sunshine in this dreary world,
Just rain, rain pouring down.

As I sit here in depths of gloom And gaze out at the rain, wish the clouds would disappear.

And show the sun again.

I turn to look inside and see My babies at their play, And all unconsciously I smile To hear their laughter gay.

No clouds in their bright happy lives No hint of rain or storm, Just pleasant paths and daisy fields And sunshine bright and warm.

A task I find to do, and hum A cheerful little-tune, And I am happy as my babes, The storm forgotten soon.

How many storms we might forget,
What realms of care and strife
Avoid, if we looked only on
The sunny side of life.
