"I Never Knew"

said Mrs. Jones to Mrs. Brown

Mrs. Brown was showing Mrs. Jones an article of unusual value. Upon inquiring where the purchase had been made, Mrs. Jones was heard to exclaim: "Why, I never knew that you could get such values and up-to-date styles right here in Birmingham, I al-ways go to Detroit to buy my things. Tell me how did you come to buy in Birmingham stores?"

"There are two reasons," answered Mrs. Brown.

"In the first place, I am convinced that Birmingham mer-chants really have something to offer. I am sure that each one of these merchants is sincere in his intent to make it possible for housewives to get the best in quality and the latest in style. .

"The truth of the matter is this: We are unwilling to give the merchants of this town a trial. I was the same way myself until I casually discovered the gold mine of values and quality that exists right in town.

"In the second place, I feel that they deserve my support. They are making it possible for Birmingham to develop into greater civic dimensions through their co-operation to solve local problems. They pay taxes, live among us, and go to church with us; our children grow up with theirs, in every respect, the ele-ment of neighborliness is manifest, except when it comes to spending our money with them.

"It seems that some of us women-folks have the idea that when we want something to wear Detroit shall be the place to get it. We seldom give a thought to the local stores. Many of, us don't even know what the inside of many of Birmingham's stores
