considered all the angles of the movie in the community. Do they feel that they are familiar enough with the lives and standards of the people who have gathered here from all parts of the country to be competent judges of what is right and wrong for all of them? Religion is the code by which one lives as long as that code is always a little ahead, so that it is necessary to try hard to live up to it. There are certain standards which are universally acknowledged and which cause they are necessary to civilization and human contact. But, for the most part, each of us has his own certain standards and cannot be judged by his neighbors. I have noticed that in general those who are most opposed to moving pictures, are they who rightfully assure you they never attend them. How can one judge sin if one knows nothing of it? Any intelligent and clean-minded person remains the type of person which appears to the lover's complaint of course, but for years they have accomplished the banning of any theaters through their complaint; a six day program would not be profitable. I wonder if these people have munity? There is culture and beauty, inspiration and moral truths in the greater proportion of present day features. If all larger cities and many of the towns there are committees organized to keep the type of movies desirable and to influence the management of the theater to put on worthwhile features. They also usually arrange to have one or two intelligent work or children which are carefully selected, and advise the parents to confine the movies for the children to those days. It is sometimes rather hard to select the salients from the sinner, and neither know many boundaries. I guess you will find them pretty well distributed in all walks of life. —Lillian Pote Carter.

OPPOSES MOVIE ORDINANCE To the Editor: In reading over the columns of your paper I see that again the theater question is up for discussion and that it is about to be placed upon the ballot at our coming election for the people of the village to decide as to whether or not an amusement house is to be allowed to do its doors on Sunday. I regret very much to see this go on a ballot and be voted upon.

I am sorry to know that a few people of Birmingham will to force other people into something they don't want to do. I mean this for both sides. No people should be forced by ballot to surrender their rights. It would be better to have a group of our town folk to get together and say we are going to have played on our ballot for the coming election the following: "I shall the churches of Birmingham be allowed to hold services on Sunday" or "I shall the churches of Birmingham be closed on Sunday."

This, of course, would be most ridiculous. Our country needs a place of amusement and I am for keeping both of them open on Sundays. I sincerely hope that this question does not come to a vote by the people, for some one is going to lose out and be forced to give up the constitutional rights. Let well enough alone, and remember, we tried to force a dry law on some of the people, but did we win? Personally I am for any man doing as he feels he has a right to do so long as he respects constitutional authority.
