VILLAGE CARRIERS TO ATTEND MEET

National President of Association Expected To Address Delegates in May

Birmingham's five village letter carriers will attend the annual convention of the National Letter Carriers' association in Pontiac, May 30, according to an announcement made by John W. Letter, postmaster, Edwin Harris, George Winslett, Chris Bailes, Robert Allison and Glen Hightman, village carriers, who will represent Birmingham.

Mr. Colla and T. C. Hotelling, assistant postmaster, will also attend as guests. The rural deliverers will not go. Some of the upstate delegates will be brought to Birmingham by the Birmingham men during their stay, since the convention program will last only on Wednesday Day.

About 300 delegates are expected, and it is hoped that Edward J. Gator, national president, will attend and address the session.

"The fact that this year's biennial national conference will be held in El Paso, Tex. in September, makes this state convention more important," says Mr. Campbell, president of the District branch of the National association of Letter carriers, said, "for our resolutions and recommendations will be able to go before the national body without undue delay."

Mild Weather Stays Work On Proposed Link

Lack of sufficient cold weather is today holding up the building of the Northeast Civic association's ice skating pond on Rivewood and Worth streets, G. A. Ziegler, association official, said.

The embankment has been laid for a month and the village has allotted several times in book the area, Mr. Ziegler said, but the frost has not yet penetrated very far into the ground, and the soil is so saturated with water that it has absorbed.

"A spell of exceedingly cold weather would have permitted the skating in almost no time," Mr. Ziegler said.

HOOFBEATS

An Autobiographical Novel—By Pathos Petoskey

Synopsis: Years in the employ of Scotland Yard had made John Sinnickin an expert. He was not particularly thin, but he could sound like a horse behind him as he walked down the back street. He looked like a long-haired, curly-haired fellow who would be glad to come off the job if he could get away with it. The rest of the world would be surprised to see him in a police uniform, but he was a good one. He was a good one. He was a good one.

Mr. Colla and T. C. Hotelling, assistant postmaster, will also attend as guests. The rural deliverers will not go. Some of the upstate delegates will be brought to Birmingham by the Birmingham men during their stay, since the convention program will last only on Wednesday Day.

"Watch for $5 bills bearing a picture of George Washington," is the warning today of E. W. Lachie, manager of the Credit Bureau. "Only $5 bills carry a picture of Washington," Mr. Lachie explained.

Mr. Lachie's attention was called to the fact that bills raised from one to five dollars were becoming prevalent in those parts by a Birmingham merchant recently. The raising has been so carefully done that only the picture will warn you of the counterfeit. The bills are of the series of 1925.

Glimpses

At and about BIRMINGHAM
By RAYMOND GIRARDIN

Since telephone booths, like incense, have become a part of our life, it is not surprising that they should be used for many purposes. One of the most common is for the purpose of making a telephone call. Another is for the purpose of making a telephone call. Another is for the purpose of making a telephone call.

Men who manufacture penny scales have grown wealthy. It is not surprising that they should be used for many purposes. One of the most common is for the purpose of making a telephone call. Another is for the purpose of making a telephone call. Another is for the purpose of making a telephone call.

Dear Mr. Geardeiro, the note says, declaring plainly enough that the sender either tried to pronounce it in letters heard some one a long time ago speak it and he did not devote his life to portraiture and all potential things which surround them have hundreds of small children pecking through the knot holes and hanging over the top of their heads and manufacture buttons and have to be dragged back to their work. Indeed, if you prefer to they are hundreds of Gatsbys straining themselves as they reach across the water toward a small, green light.

Two old men whose shoulder blades protrude huddle about a small fire in the alleyway next to the interurban station. And those who pass edge close for a half second of comfort. Men carry great bundles of groceries from the stores and appear uncomfortable at their distant occupation. A chauffeur in heavy waist and warts. Then there is that shell hole on Woodward where some day thousands will be watching motion pictures. There was still the coffee and it was good coffee. I
