Folksburg had a right enjoyable Christmas. Of course there were a few instances where expectations ran a little too high and didn't pan out. But in the main, everybody was out in the mood for a pleasant day.

Mrs. Elmsira Peek has been a little bothered over the last two days on account of a letter she saw. Wasley Mills stoop over in front of her house like he was found something, and she's not been able to learn whether he did and what it was.

Felix Cubb grew tolerably peevish Tuesday morning, when he wanted to see someone quick and found his finger caught in the door. He ran back and forth and carried all the hot water his wife didn't accomplish anything noticeable. He was talking in dead earnest that he'd build a fire under the machine, but his wife intervened and got him started off on foot wherever he was going.

Miss Mabel Young, who mailed out a lot of Christmas cards during a good deal of mail last week, but she says it has a return of her good wishes, and that next time she'll change her tactics and watch the extent of her instructions quite so soon.

Miss Saffie Baxter is making preparations to give a winter party at her house next Friday night. She's hoping the wind won't be blowing from the east that night, for when it does their furnace won't heat the parlor enough so that you can keep anybody in the house.

When the Pontiac Six was introduced a year ago it represented an automotive development so new and revolutionary that the public was literally overwhelmed. At the almost unbelievable price of $825, it offered qualities of beauty, comfort, performance and reliability previously undreamed of among low-priced sixes. Although it was new in the public sense it was then actually over three years old. For it represented more than thirty-six months of continuous development on the part of General Motors and Oakland engineers—development carried out, not only in the finest research laboratories of the industry, but also at the great General Motors Proving Ground. Since then over 76,000 Pontiac Sixes have been built—the largest first year production ever achieved by a new make of car. And that wildfire buying enthusiasm continues unabated—because no other car gives what Pontiac Six does at the price. Search the whole field of low-priced sixes and you simply cannot find at Pontiac prices such features as Fisher Bodies of surpassing beauty, style and ruggedness; 46 lb. crankshaft full pressure oiling; the costliest type of interchangeable, bronze-bracket bearings and semi-solid pistons. Go even into the medium-priced field and you will not find any six-cylinder power plant giving such definite assurance of long life and thrilling performance—for the Pontiac Six engine is the largest used in any six selling up to $1,000. The blunt truth is that wherever you go and however you compare, you cannot find in any other low-priced six so many instances of sound design and sound construction—such definite assurance of lasting satisfaction. For the Pontiac Six is just as new and unequalled today as it was a year ago!
